Governor Vetoes Measure Providing For County Controller

U. S. FLIERS IN RUSSIA

Governor Fails To Approve Bill For Controller

Vetoes Measure Which Would Have Given New Office In Lawrence County

AUDITORS WILL REMAIN HERE

Governor Holds Way Is Open For Counties To Secure Controller In Old Law

(From News Bureau)
(State Capital)

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 25.—Governor Pinchot today vetoed the bill of Senator George T. Weingartner, of New Castle, creating the office of controller in sixth-class counties. Had the bill been approved, the voters in Lawrence and other sixth-class counties this fall would have filled the newly created position.

The Governor in his veto message said this bill would create the office of controller, and abolish the office of auditor in counties of the sixth class. Counties of this class may now have a county controller instead of county auditors by taking the proceedings prescribed by the county code of May 2, 1929, which this bill would amend.

An amendment to that act contained in an omnibus amendment act, (Act No. 146 of 1931) adopted at the recent session of the legislature which I have approved, permits retention of the controller by counties that have receded to the sixth class by reason of loss of population further legislation is unnecessary.

PA NEWC OBSERVES

Roasting ears should be in the market earlier than usual this year, that is, the home grown variety. Corn which is raised in other localities can be secured now, but the home grown variety will not be along until the last of July. Ordinarily, if the corn is knee high at the Fourth of July, growing conditions are said to be good, but Pa Newc found corn growing that high out in Clifton Flats yesterday. Gardens are in a fine stage of cultivation everywhere.

Lawrence County motorists going to Akron to see the dirigible, who travel Route 17 out of Poland, Ohio, will find a detour on the route. It makes a better trip for the motorists, if instead of coming back to Route 17 from Route 18 where the signs are erected, Route 18 be followed on to Rootstown, and then return to Route 17 be made from this place by Route 44. The detour back as routed by the signs is covered for several miles with loose limestone, while the road from Rootstown back to Route 17 in a fine piece of macadam road.

Thousands of visitors are daily to be seen at the dirigible dock at Akron, Pa Newc was told on the occasion of a visit to the hangar yesterday. Concession men are operating in the vicinity, in large numbers, and one gets the impression of visiting a country fair, or some other exhibition, instead of making a visit to the actual scene of big scale industrial activity.

Following Route 17 to the Zeppelin hangar at Akron, even with the present detour is only a matter of 75 miles from New Castle, so that it is quite likely that when the new airship is ready to cruise around from

PENNSY SHOP FORCE WILL BE INCREASED

Car Repair Crews Here To Be Augmented By Erie Shopmen On July First

DOUBLES PRESENT FORCE OF WORKERS

Effective Wednesday, July 1, the Pennsylvania railroad's Cherry street car repair shop will add approximately 50 men to its payroll as a result of a reduction in operations at the company's car shop at Erie, it was officially learned at Pennsylvania offices here today.

The increase, it is understood, will represent a boost in employment at the local shop to almost double the present quota. It is believed that ultimately more than 300 will be the normal capacity of workers, twice as many as have heretofore been employed.

Most of the 50 additional men who will be added to the force here next week are being recruited from the Erie shops, where operations have been on a decline for some time.

The Pennsy car shop here provides almost the entire flat car equipment for entire system. Flats for the newest order of container cars, used to transport less-than-carload cargoes, are now being turned out in rapid order.

Under the change the Erie shopmen may accept work here if they desire to. Should they refuse to apply, their places will be replaced with New Castle men.

DOCTORS, DENTISTS, AND DRUGGISTS BANQUET

First Get Together Event Is Enjoyed At Field Club Wednesday

Dr. C. A. Reed In Charge As Toastmaster — Pittsburgh Man Speaks

Close to 70 of Lawrence county's doctors, dentists and druggists were assembled in the merry banquet group that gathered in the New Castle Field club last night for the first get-together dinner of the combined medical, dental pharmaceutical groups. It was the first joint banquet for the three societies but not the last by any means, or at least the diners present hoped it wouldn't be.

The field club event was sponsored by a joint committee on arrangements which shouldered complete responsibility for the success of the program, and all credit for its success is due them. Dr. John Foster, representing the doctors, was general chairman.

Guests were in attendance both from here and out-of-town points, and were presented to the audience.

Beautiful Decorations.

A delicious chicken dinner was served the group in the attractive dining room of the clubhouse, made all the more attractive by the beautiful garden flowers arranged about the room through the courtesy of Mrs. Jesse R. Cooper, wife of one of the committee members. The flowers were raised in the Cooper garden.

Orchestra music was provided for the guests while they dined by a local group of musicians.

Just before Dr. John Foster of the doctors, in the role of general chair-

National Miners Still Molesting Those Who Work

Heavy Guard Is Maintained At Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Mines

MANY PICKETS ACTIVE TODAY

National Miners' Union Denies Accuracy Of Number Who Return To Jobs

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, June 25.—Under protection of state police and a force of extra deputy sheriffs, mines of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation in Western Pennsylvania continued operations today under agreement with the United Mine Workers of America. Company officials reported 85 per cent of their 2,400 miners returned to work.

Men and women, under the guidance of the communistic National Miners' Union, joined in mass demonstrations at entrances to the mines, but no disorders were reported. The radical union, not recognizing any agreements between the U. M. W. and the operators considers the strike still on at the Terminal mines.

Scoff At Figures

National Miners' Union officials hotly denied the accuracy of the company's figures on the men at work. While the company announced yesterday that 50 per cent of the men had returned, the radical union spokesmen scoffed at the estimate and declared that "only a handful of scabs" had gone back.

The reported march of 1,500 Ohio miners on the Terminal mines failed to materialize, although state troopers and deputy sheriffs were prepared to meet any emergency situation.

Informed of the possibility of a demonstration by the Ohioans, Gov. Gifford Pinchot instructed state police not to interfere unless disorders cropped up.

"So long as these visitors conduct themselves well, they will be treated with all proper consideration," the governor said, "but disorderly or violance interference in affairs of this commonwealth by strikers from outside Pennsylvania will not be tolerated."

Police Instructed

In event of trouble with the Ohioans, the governor instructed the state troopers to escort the visitors to the state line.

The Coverdale mine of the Terminal company was picketed by 200

WILL ROGERS says:

(Special To The News)

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 25.—There is one big advantage about proposing plans and schemes for the world's solution now. None of them can be acted on till congress meets in December and by that time all of the ones proposed now will be forgotten and a new batch will be brought out.

We can't maintain excitement over any one thing over a couple of weeks at the most. World ain't going to be saved by nobody's scheme.

It's fellows with schemes that got us into this mess. Plans get you into things, but you got to work your way out.

Volant College Annual Reunion

Former Students And Friends Of College Meet On Wednesday

D. D. POTTER IS NEW PRESIDENT

Memories of forty years ago on the campus of Volant College were recalled Wednesday on the occasion of the annual reunion of the alumni, former students, friends of the college and former residents of the home of that institution on the banks of the Neshannock Creek.

It was one of the largest of such gatherings in the history of such events and also one of the happiest and merriest and the laughter of those participating mingled in perfect harmony with rippling waters of the Neshannock as they rolled past the old campus and almost seemed to laugh aloud as the happy days of many years ago were recalled.

Select Officers

In the selection of officers for the ensuing year by the more than four hundred persons participating in the event, D. D. Potter of this city, was honored with the office of president for the ensuing year. Other officers selected were A. M. McConahy, of New Castle, as vice president; Miss Olive Clinefelter, of Youngstown, as secretary and Mrs. Scott Hamilton of this city as treasurer.

It was the unanimous decision that the next reunion be held on the last Wednesday of June , 1932, when it is anticipated that the Volant College Memory Book will be ready for distribution.

Alumni, former students and former residents of Volant were in attendance from Grove City, New Castle, Franklin, Beaver, Youngstown, Pittsburgh, Akron, Cleveland and many nearby points.

Among the guests from a distance was Maude Watson Wilson of Plymouth, Mass., a former student of Volant College, also her sisters, Mrs. Nellie Watson McCarthy of Cleve-

U. S. SEEKS TO MEET FRENCH OBJECTIONS TO WAR DEBT PROPOSALS

France's Reply To Hoover's Debt Moratorium Plan Needs Some Alteration

Whole Plan May Be In Jeopardy Unless France Agrees To Change

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 25.—President Hoover's proposal for a year's suspension of inter-governmental war debts, as a means of providing a breathing spell for a depression-weary world, stood in jeopardy today as he and his advisers sought to find a way to overcome French objections to the plan.

France's reply to his proposal, while couched in the conciliatory language of diplomacy, is considered by administration officials to be tantamount to a rejection—in that it sets up conditions which undermines the whole structure of the plan.

They call it "an acceptance in principle," but that does not obviate the fact that France insists that Germany must raise and deposit in the Bank of International Settlements the "unconditional" portion of her reparations payments, amounting to some $110,000,000 a year, moratorium or no moratorium. That is a far departure from the complete

NEXT LEG OF TRIP IS ACROSS SIBERIA

Fliers Expect To Make Round World Flight In Ten Days

By EDWARD L. DEUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

MOSCOW, June 25.—Wiley Post and Harold F. Gatty, American aerial circumnavigators, brought their monoplane Winnie Mae down on the local landing field here today at 5:40 p. m., Moscow time, completing the third leg of their round the world flight.

The fliers were sighted from the field shortly after 5:30 p. m. (11:30 a. m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time) winging in low over the city preparatory to landing.

They had taken nine hours and five minutes for their flight from Templehof Field, Berlin.

Several hundred persons, including Dmitri Egrov, representing the U. S. S. R. Commissary of air, were on the landing field when the speedy plane came down.

The distance covered in the flight from the German Capital was approximately 925 miles. The fliers averaged 100 miles an hour, in contract to the record-breaking clip of 150 miles an hour they averaged on the journey across the Atlantic from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland to England.

The American fliers' original itinerary called for the next leg of the flight, a jump of 2,600 miles over Siberia to Irkutsk, to get under way after only a few hours' rest. They planned to remain overnight at Irkutsk before proceeding to Kharborovsk.

Three Firemen In Erie Are Overcome; Woman Is Rescued

Ray Collins, Erie Fighter Rescues Woman As Building Burns

ERIE, Pa., June 25.—Three firemen were overcome by smoke today while battling flames which destroyed a building and seriously damaged an adjoining structure.

Mrs. Luella Garrish, 42, slightly injured in the fire, was rescued from her blazing second-floor apartment by Ray Collins, well known pugilist here. Mrs. Barbara Schlaudecker, occupying another apartment in the building which housed the Eckard drug store on the first floor, was rescued by firemen when overcome by smoke.

Fire and water damaged a restaurant in the adjoining building.

The cherry trees are loaded down, the peaches bow with weight, and every berry bush looks good for shels six or eight. The apples crowd each other out, the plums are thick and large, the garden easily would fill a steamship or a barge. For nature seems to promise much, and overflowing store, the weather too is running high, today is ninety four. And every one can get his fill of juicy fruits this year, there is so much, that some will spoil upon the trees I fear.

Miners Refuse To Listen To Pleas To Join Walkout

Striking Miners Fail At Mine Near Punxsutawney To Get Miners To Quit

NO DISORDERS ARE REPORTED

(International News Service)

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa., June 25.—An attempt of striking miners from the Buffalo and Susquehanna Coal Company mines at Sagamore to influence workers at the company's mine at Sykesville, near here, to join the western Pennsylvania bituminous walkout failed today as the miners continued with their work and refused to listen to the entreaties of the pickets.

Almost 150 Sagamore workers, under the leadership of John Ghizzony, a member of the international executive board of the United Mine Workers of America, arrived here at 5:15 this morning just as the Sykesville miners were entering the workings. Patrolling the mine entrance in pairs under the eyes of five state police, Sheriff John Allebach and a squad of deputies, the strikers made known their requests quietly and without disorder.

Report 329 At Work.

Company officials reported that 329 workers were at their posts in the Sykesville mine today, an increase of six over yesterday's payroll. They said they anticipated no disorders or strikes because miners at the Sykesville workings have been given six days' work each week for the past several months while most other mines in the district have only been worked two or three days a week.

The Sagamore motorcade drove off from the three mines of the company near Kittanning at dawn this morning. They arrived at Sykesville in three trucks and ten passenger cars. When they realized that their demands were ineffective, they again boarded the vehicles and returned to Sagamore.

The mass picket was planned last night at a rally of the Sagamore workers which was addressed by James Marks, president of District No. 2 of the United Mine Workers of America.

the hangar it will be seen over New Castle many times. Especially will the Zeppelin likely pass over this city when going east.

More long distance auto touring seems to be in progress this summer than ever before, especially from the west to the east. Pa Newc noted. California, Arizona, Oklahoma, and other western licenses on cars in this vicinity yesterday. Kansas, Illinois, Indiana, etc., are becoming quite numerous in this region.

Cherry pickers are busy in all parts of Lawrence county and adjoining territory, as a bumper crop is being picked. Trees are loaded down with the ripe fruit. Much of it will be canned for use this winter. It is to be hoped that none of the immense crop of cherries, berries and fruits, in evidence this summer will go to waste.

CAN THE SURPLUS.

Visit to this city Wednesday afternoon, of the fourth assistant postmaster general, seems to indicate that some action is near on the matter of selection of the site for the new post office in New Castle. It is hoped that the decision is made so that preparations can be inaugurated shortly on the actual building program.

Young men of Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio seem to have gone in for getting a super sunburn this summer. Hundreds are to be noted who are burned a deep brown, and many are spending a greater part of the day in a bathing suit, exposed to the sun. Lack of employment for the youth has at least driven them out into the open this summer.

Local police have approximately a dozen auto licenses plates at the police station, which have been turned over to them. These plates were lost from cars in different parts of the city, and were picked up and taken to the police station. Owners of lost plates may secure them by proving ownership.

The big Buick police car went "haywire" this morning, while being driven across the East Washington street bridge, one of the brakes on the rear wheels locking. It was necessary to call the city mechanics to repair the brakes, before the machine could be moved.

Out on Jackson avenue, a man named Mechesney has one of the finest gardens in the city. The ground was covered with second growth trees and bushes this spring, but it was plowed for him by the garden committee and Mr. Mechesney grubbed out the roots. Now the things planted are growing fine.

Clarence Samuels, city policeman, known also for his fishing proclivities is preparing his fishing tackle for a quest of the bass. The season will soon be in and "Ducky" as he is known to other patrolmen claims he knows where they lurk.

City hall employes are preparing for their annual picnic. Today the various offices hummed with picnic talk and the girls were instructed to arrange for the outing. The affair is held once each year and is attended by office employes.

VOLANT COLLEGE ANNUAL REUNION

land, and Mrs. Anna Watson Daniels of Pittsburgh.

These ladies are the daughters of the late Prof. James Watson, a former county superintendent of schools for Lawrence county and who assisted in the first summer school held at Volant College. There were many other prominent alumni and former students of the college in attendance.

The entire day from early in the morning, when the first of the large group arrived until early evening was only too short for those who gathered to recall all that they desired to bring to memory but short as it was, all had a pleasant time.

At noon, the Ladies Missionary Society of the Volant Presbyterian church served dinner to many of the large crowd in attendance. The ladies had arranged a cafeteria for the occasion and handled the situation in a very efficient manner, which added much to the enjoyment of the occasion. The food prepared by the ladies was in keeping with the reputation long established by the Volant churches for wonderful meals. The ladies of the Presbyterian church were tendered a vote of thanks for their efforts.

After the dinner the guests renewed old friendships of forty years ago and being relieved of the necessity of bothering with the noon day meal, had a glorious time until the afternoon business and memory session was held.

The afternoon session was held in the Presbyterian church, near the old campus. At this time, a vote of thanks was tendered the committee on arrangements, for the wonderful success of the occasion.

The work of the memory book committee, who presented a sample of the proposed book for the approval of those in attendance, was approved and R. H. Perry, chairman and Miss Olive Clinefelter, secretary, were re-elected for another year.

Business Session.

Retiring President A. M. McConahy presided in the business session and the presentation of the program in the church. Miss Mary Minehan, the secretary, read the minutes of the last reunion and the letters from a number of absent members. One of these from Dr. J. B. Bowman, known as "Brady" in the days of Volant college, and now dean of Mt. Union college, was found to be of special interest. In his letter, he expressed his regret at being unable to be present and expressed his deep appreciation of a group of alumni of a school that would continue to hold reunions after 40 years, although the original college buildings were gone and only the campus remained to remind them of their college days. Such loyalty, he said, was a wonderful tribute to the institution and the persons responsible for its existence. He also expressed high praise for the success in life of many of the former students. Mrs. Maude McCracken presented a financial report, which showed the association to be in fine shape.

R. H. Perry, chairman of the memory book committee, gave a brief report of the work accomplished and what might be expected by another reunion. Miss Olive Clinefelter, the secretary-treasurer, also made an interesting report.

Judge L. T. Farr of Lisbon, O., to whom the memory book has been dedicated, expressed his appreciation of the honor conferred on him and spoke most kindly of the work done by the committee in charge. Judge Farr was accorded this honor in view of his untiring efforts to make the memory book a possibility.

Dr. C. G. Jordan, former secretary of agriculture for Pennsylvania and a life long resident of the district, held the audience spellbound and in constant rounds of applause as he told of the old college days and what he knew concerning most of the former students. He termed the memory book, which he highly praised, as "A Volume of a Little College in the Little Village of Volant, Nestling in the Hills of Lawrence County Along the Neshannock".

Mrs. Anna Galbreath, who was known in Volant college days as the Mother of the College, spoke in appreciation of what the college students had done in perpetuating the memory of the institution and those associated with it.

Mrs. Edith Galbreath Elliott, known as the baby of the college, recited "An Old Sweetheart of Mine" using it as the basis of an original reading that had frequent reference to Volant college and its former students. She is at present register and recorder at Columbiana, O.

Prof. A. A. Galbreath gave a memorial address on the students that have passed on, his remarks being presented in a beautiful manner.

Prof. C. F. Ball, assistant county superintendent of schools, spoke briefly in commendation of the college and those who had attended it. Short addresses were also given by Prof. C. E. Hawk and Prof. George Dannels. The occasion was brought to a successful conclusion with pictures taken by a local photographer of the entire group and also separate class groups. These pictures will be placed in the memory book.

U. S SEEKS TO MEET FRENCH OBJECTIONS

cessation of war debt transactions which Mr. Hoover had in mind, and which he proposed.

France Not Conciliatory.

It is not the first time that Mr. Hoover has found himself checkmated by the attitude of France in his efforts at world betterment. It was French opposition at London a little more than a month ago that dashed Mr. Hoover's hopes for a five-power naval limitation treaty.

So stubborn was the French attitude upon that occasion that he American delegates to the London conference came home with a three-power instead of a five-power treaty.

Whether the French will prove so adamant on this occasion remains to be seen. The French reply to the president's proposal was being studied here today to find some loophole through which the relief of Germany can be attained without offending French sensibilities.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellor is expected to reach Paris today or tomorrow in an endeavor to convince the French it is to their advantage to accept the American proposal.

At the treasury department today it was admitted that while Mellon's European trip had Paris on the itinerary, he advanced the date because of the crisis the French attitude toward the debt holiday has created.

Advices from London had told of Mellon's intention to go immediately to Paris from the British capital.

France Disappoints.

There is no gainsaying the fact that the French attitude has proved a bitter disappointment to the administration. The unanimity with which political and business opinion in the United States supported the president's move, the prompt approval given by the British, German and Italian governments, and the world-wide chorus of commendation, all had served to make the administration highly hopeful. Under the circumstances, the recalcitrant attitude of France was a severe shock.

Secretary of State Stimson, however, refused to be publicly downcast over the situation.

He was, he said, "100 per cent optimistic" of finding a solution. Earlier he had asserted that "the president's proposal was drawn on broad simple outlines—and they will not be departed from".

But after perusing the French note and discussing it for hours with President Hoover and Acting Secretary of the Treasury Mills, the secretary of state was moved to exclaim:

"Why, it would be a crime if anything happened to upset this plan."

Man Surrenders Self; Confesses Slaying Of Wife

Stricken With Remorse, Jos. Galenoia, Admits He Clubbed Wife To Death

ADMITS THROWING BODY IN RIVER

(International News Service)

GREENSBURG, Pa., June 25.—Stricken with remorse, Joseph Galenoia, 30, a native of Hungary, today surrendered to police and confessed the brutal clubbing and murder of his common law wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Potts, 37, whose body he threw into the Conemaugh river at Seward where the couple lived.

Police quoted Galenoia as admitting he rendered the woman unconscious with a blow over the head with a club during a jealous quarrel. He dragged her to the river, near his home, where under the cover of darkness, Galenoia held the woman's head under the water until he was certain she had been drowned, police reported.

Early this morning, Galenoia attempted to hide the woman's body in the deeper portion of the river but was unsuccessful.

Returning to Seward, he told the story to Justice of the Peace C. M. Shoup, who ordered him removed to the jail at Johnstown.

Pennsy Retiring "Targetman" Here

For a period of 16 years, John J. Announcement of his coming retirement was made today.

O'Conner, born at Bushy Park, Ireland, first obtained a lampman's job with the Pennsylvania on May 3, 1896. Later he took up his work of "targetman" and has been performing his duties faithfully ever since.

They assert their innocence of the crime.

POST AND GATTY ARE CONTINUING WORLD FLIGHT

June 25.—The third lap of Wiley Post's and Harold Gatty's aerial circumnavigation of the globe in their white monoplane Winne Mae began today at 7:35 a. m. Continental Time (2:30 a. m. New York Time) when they took off from Templehof aerodrome fro Moscow eleven hours after their arrival here from across the Atlantic.

After only five hours' sleep and weary from the tension of their twenty-four hours' flight from Harbor Grace, N. F., Post, the ene-eyed Oklahoma pilot, and Gatty, his Australian-born Los Angeles navigator, left the Templehof hotel just after seven o'clock. Despite a loss of several hours' flying time, they were still determined to circle the globe in ten days.

The present record for speed in achieving that journey is twenty days and four hours, established by Dr. Hugo Eckener in the dirigible Graf Zeppelin in 1929.

PINCHOT SIGNS VOTING MACHINE AMENDMENT BILL

where county commissioners have failed to install them.

Under the bill, if commissioners fail to let a contract for machines within a year of their approval, the secretary of the commonwealth will notify them that if no action is taken within 30 days he will award a contract for the machines with costs to be paid by the county.

Provides Changes

The measure also changes the size of voting machine districts, providing one machine may be supplied for every 500 voters and one must be provided for every 600 electors. Other provisions of the bill aim at increasing supervisory powers of the secretary of the commonwealth and blostering the 1929 Voting Machine Act.

The governor also approved the Mansfield Bill prohibiting any person from paying another's poll tax and the Weingartner measure setting up the first codification of third-class city laws enacted since 1913.

A series of bills relating to ratification of emergency employment of assistant district attorneys and county detectives in Luzerne, Lackawanna and Westmoreland counties was also approved as was a bill of Sen. Scott, Centre, providing for acceptance of federal funds to aid reforestation.

Appropriations Signed

Seventeen appropriation bills, totaling $3,846,047 were approved after the governor lopped nearly two million dollars from their totals. Eight other bills appropriating $366,100 were vetoed.

Appropriation measures signed included $1,650,000 to University of Pennsylvania, cut from $2,000,000; $1,320,000 for University of Pittsburgh, cut from $1,650,000; $660,000 for Temple University, cut from $1,320,000; $50,000 to Department of Forests and Waters for state park lands, cut from $150,000; $110,000 to Hahneman Medical College, cut from $130,000; and $20,000 for free county libraries.

Appropriation bills vetoed included $300,000 to the Highway Department; $10,000 to State College for experimental work on grasses; $5,000 to Wakefield Memorial Association for restoration of Washington's birthplace; and $3,000 for expenses of legislative delegates to aviation conferences.

move of the first importance and one which might result in insugurating an entirely new era in Franco-German relationships.

The conversations were hailed as double important because of the fact United States secretary of the treasury Andrew W. Mellon was expected to be in Paris while they are in progress. Mellon left London for the French capital this morning.

Invited to Paris

Paris, June 25.—Chancellor Heinrich Bruening and Foreign Minister Dr. Julius Curtius of Germany have been invited by the French government to come to Paris on Tuesday of next week for a conference similar to that held with British statesmen at Chequers early in the month, it was officially announced this afternoon.

At the same time it was announced that Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon has accepted an invitation to lunch at the ministry of the interior with Premier Pierre Laval and Finance Minister Pierre Etienne Flandin tomorrow.

Belief was expressed that the conferences would aid materially in clearing away differences of opinion over President Hoover's debt suspension proposal.

Deaths of the Day

Mrs. Alexander McClerery.

Mrs. Elizabeth Gere McClerery wife of Alexander McClerery of Claysville, Pa., died Sunday evening following an hour's illness. Heart trouble, with which she had suffered for three years, was the cause of her death.

She was born in Erie 55 years ago and after the death of her mother, when she was five years of age, she made her home with her uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. Minten, the former of whom practiced his profession in this city.

After her aunt's death in 1892 she made her home with friends in Lawrence county. She was married 31 years ago. She was an active worker in the Claysville M. E. church and was also greatly interested in the grange.

She is survived by her husband and eight children, Mrs. George Foster of Erie, William McClerery of Lewistown, Pa., Gertrude, Catherine, Harold, Robert, Charles and Lery McClerery of Claysville; also four grandchildren. Funeral services were held Tuesday and among those attending were Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Boak and daughter Effie.

Robert J. Cochran

Robert James Cochran, aged 43, died last night at nine o'clock at his home on South Beaver Street Extension, following an illness of three months due to a complication of diseases.

Mr. Cochran was born in Greensburg, Pa., January 15, 1888, the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Cochran. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Agnes Cochran and three daughters, Genedinem Mary and Rachel, also his mother, Mrs. Mary A. Cochran of Mercer, Pa., one sister, Mrs. David Cummings, of Mercer and one brother, Jay Cochran of Chicago.

Funeral services will be held Saturday, June 27, 1931 at 2 p. m. D. S. T. at the residence on South Beaver street extension. Interment will be made in Savannah Cemetery.

DOCTORS, DENTISTS, DRUGGISTS BANQUET

man, opened the speaking program an impromptu selection was contributed by a select quartet. "Sweet Adeline" was the request number and Dr. C. W. Davis, Dr. Jesse R. Cooper, Dr. W. P. Felch and Dr. W A. Women were the singers.

Dr. Foster voiced the appreciation of the audience for the quartet number in his opening remarks, and then briefly extended a hearty word of welcome to the dentists and druggists for the doctors.

Dr. Reed Presides

William M. Frantz, local druggist was then called upon to become the toastmaster of the evening, but he used oratory strategy and avoided the job by calling upon Dr. J. L. Reed, member of the dental group. Dr. Reed wanted to be toastmaster about as much as Mr. Frantz did, so it wasn't for long that he occupied the floor. He picked Dr. H. E. Zerner of the medical fraternity as the logical one who should perside during the evening, but Dr. Zerner, while his speech was longer than the rest, side-stepped for one who couldn't side-step, Dr. Charles A. Reed, president of the medical society.

Dr. Reed had been given previous notice that he would be the toastmaster, so naturally he couldn't dodge. He accepted in an appropriate way taking time to amplify Dr. Foster's opening welcome.

Fred L. Rentz, special guest of the three groups, was then introduced by the toastmaster. His remarks were timely and expressed his appreciation for the pleasure of being present.

With most of the introductions over, Dr. Reed then gave Albert Kennedy Rowswell, Pittsburgh humorist and chief speaker full sway. "The Value of a Laugh" was the theme he chose, and his entertaining message mixed humor with pathos.

Lawrence county's smaller towns sent delegations of doctors, dentists and druggists to the banquet event, and with several other guests, they enjoyed the evening. Dr. P. C. Biggins, Sharpsville and Dr. Homer Allen, local resident now attending a Philadelphia medical school, were the out-of-town guests.

With Dr. Foster on the joint committee on arrangements were Dr. H. E. Zerner, Dr. W. C. Burchfield and Dr. Jesse R. Cooper, physicians; Dr. W. C. Gilmore, Dr. J. P. Campbell dentists and W. M. Frantz and S. Reed Megown, representing the pharmacists.

Mrs. Eugenia Pritchard, of East Lutton street, is visiting in Aliquippa, Pa.

AVERT FOREST FIRES

THE Wisconsin Conservation Commissioner has checked up and reported the after-effects of the worst forest-fire in the history of that state. Since similar tragedies must follow forest fires almost everywhere, they should have wide publicity.

Fish, birds and wild animals suffer terribly during the progress of a forest fire. But their troubles do not end when the fire is put out. Many of those that survive the flames die later from lack of food and lack of protective covering, both of which are destroyed by fire. Fish die in streams because of warmed and ash-poisoned water and lack of oxygen. Deer suffer from badly burned feet.

It has been estimated that barely one per cent of Wisconsin's forest fires are caused by lightning. The other 99 per cent are the result of human carelessness or indifference. The whole effect of forest fires is considered more destructive to game than all the violations of hunting and fishing laws.

The vacation season is well under way now. People are turning to the woods for one-day outings and recreation and for longer periods of camping and outdoor life. It seems incredible that people who truly enjoy such excursions would remain indifferent to the damage any carelessness of theirs might cause if they understood the situation. Somehow, this particular branch of public education must be more thorough.

THE PRESS GETS ITS MAN

One of the post-war superstitions placed upon the publication of crime news by the public press the responsibility for the rise of the crime wave and the growing menace of the racketeer and gangster. Many otherwise sensible and discerning persons subscribed to this queer notion that between crime and crime news there was an effect and cause relationship rather than a relationship of cause and effect.

Oddly, that arch racketeer, Al Capone has vindicated the press. His case—so long cited as proof that his power depended largely upon newspaper publicity—has demonstrated most convincingly that the press is the power public enemies fear more than any other.

The Chicago gang leader has been stripped of his power and brought to the bar of justice by newspaper publicity, which has surmounted corruption and graft and shamed public officials into curbing the deadly and demoralizing hand of gangdom.

The judges and prosecutors who a year or two ago tried to make the newspapers the goat are now forced to admit that the law enforcement agencies now battling the gangs were goaded on by fear of political banishment by a public aroused by the very crime news they were deprecating so recently.

THE GOLFING DEPRESSION

Golf, like business, is suffering from a depression, but with this difference: in golfing circles the depression is spiritual rather than material. It all started with the introduction of the new light ball, which you can't hit as far as the old one, or control as well. The result is that score cards aren't as low as they were this time last year; that the average player, who gets more satisfaction out of a good solid drive from the tee than anything else, experiences these moments of golfing ecstacy at rarer intervals than heretofore; that putting is becoming a much more delicate operation; that a slight wind is a formidable menace; that the number of players who may be seen glumly trailing their hooks and slices into the rough has increased enormously, and that the Nineteenth Hole, that cheery haven, where one used to sip such cooling drinks and hear such amiable talk, has become a forum for nothing but complaints. Bowed down by the melancholy state of affairs at the office, your average golfer, hieing himself linksward to revive his drooping spirits with a round or two, is only plunged into a deeper gloom by his sorry efforts to cope with the new ball.

In times such as these, when golf might well be helping to sustain the morale of the American businessman, it really seems that the U. S. G. A., if it had to do something about the old ball, would have done better to change it so that the game would be made easier. The American businessman has enough woes already without adding to them by raising his golf score.—The Cincinnati Times-Star.

100 MILES AN HOUR

Members of the Society of Automotive Engineers prophesy driving at 100 miles an hour will be common and safe soon. This is not on speedways and race tracks, but on the regular highways. It seems an appalling thought.

The engineers declare such a speed will be safe under certain conditions. These are the good judgment and skill of the driver, the perfection of the car and the reliability of the road.

Such a combination of conditions seems a little overdrawn. Yet the fact remains that highway speed is increasing rather than diminishing. It is recognized now that the slow driver is as great a peril as the fast driver. In fact, he is more of a peril if the faster driver happens to be thoroughly skillful and of good judgment and is handling a car in excellent condition.

Remember John Keats
He Will Help You
As He Helped Himself

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Many a time in this yast year I've thought of John Keats. Of that valiant English poet who died so young, and had hardly set himself down before the great feast of life before he was called away forever.

But I have taken courage from the way John Keats lived and the way John Keats died. He was no ethereal being, that poet who wrote half a dozen of the loveliest poems in the English language. He loved fighting and he fought well. He loved good food, he loved lively companions, he played and he danced, and when he fell in love he was as silly as any young man with a tenth of his genius.

When he died, a crazy story ran all over England to the effect that harsh criticism of his poems had broken his heart. . . . That wasn't true. He had a tough skin for that sort of thing and he knew in his heart—and admitted—that his "Endymion" was full of defects he would remedy in time. So he was healthy and life was precious to him, and he had no soppy ideas about the beauty of death when a man is young.

But John Keats had no craven ideas about "playing safe". Once he wrote a friend: "The first thing that strikes me on hearing a misfortune has befallen another is this, 'Well, it cannot be helped, he will have the pleasure of trying the resources of his spirit."

Well, it's easy enough to say such things about the other fellow's trouble. He is drowning, you are safe on the bank. He is suffering, you never felt better in your life. At such a time, who could not be a sage philosopher? . . . But Keats knew that, too, and when his own doom was pronounced, he bore it as bravely as any man might. He had dreamed of death and written:

"When I have fears that I may cease to be Before my pen has gleaned my teeming brain"—

and though he had not gleaned that teeming brain when Death came for him, he said to himself: "Well, it cannot be helped, now I, too, will have the pleasure of trying the resources of my spirit!"

So I have thought of him many a time in this last hard year. Like others, I've heard many a sad story and seen many a sad face, and I've seen many a man trying the resources of his spirit and learning for himself just what he is made of. Like everyone else, I have been worried at times and been depressed and been afraid. . . . And I have thought of valiant young John Keats and how he lived and what he said and how he died, and he has been a great and enduring help.

THE MARTINS

The Martins are peculiar and whimsical at best
They're very charming tenants, if with you they choose to nest,
But though the house you build for them may perfect seem to be
You cannot coax them into it if something wrong they see.

I do not know precisely what the Martin ask from men:
I only know they like a house with rooms for eight or ten
And it must stand above the ground full fourteen feet or more
With unimpeded space about for them to wheel and soar.

The neighborhood must suit their choice: the gardens must be neat,
Nor will they stay to raise their young along a noisy street,
And many a man has built a house their fellowship to win,
Which for some cause to him unknown, they would not enter in.

The scouts come on in early spring to look the houses o'er,
And if they do not like the place you'll see their charms no more.
But should the home their fancies suit, within a day or two
The Martins will arrive to spend the summertime with you.

"GOOD" FELLOWS

Many fellows are traveling a rough financial roadway because they did not say they could not afford things which were too expensive for them.

The "good fellow" is usually the one first affected in times, hard and depressed, as the present.

He has not provided for the future and its uncertainties.

The good fellow finds it hard to get loans from those with whom he spent money liberally, in normal times.

They know him and consider him a poor fiancial risk.

If you have had experience trying to procure loans from those you have counted as friends, you realize it is not such an easy task.

Friendship and business are two different propositions.

If you have not had to try to borrow from friends, keep out of it.

As a good fellow you may have been willing to help a friend with your last dollar and you like to say so, too.

But your good friends are as badly off as you are and they can't help you this time.

The safe plan to adopt is to say "No" to expenditures suggested by members of your crowd when you know you cannot afford them.

Farming is simple. You just sell your crop for less than it cost you and give a mortgage for the difference.

The Loss Of The Ship Begins When One Sailor's Impudence Goes Unrebuked

The greatest enemies of a country are its indifferent friends.

America's present troubles are due to the fact that the average man doesn't care.

When some menace or wrong appears without warning, the shock of surprise is sufficient to arouse the popular interest necessary to overcome it.

But threats and injustices and indecencies that develop gradually seldom meet with opposition, for public tolerance grows with the evil itself and custom makes wrong seem right.

If the women of 1910 had discarded the greater part of their clothing and appeared in public as women dressed last year, all the world would have joined in a chorus of condemnation; but the change came so gradually that each new exposure seemed but little worse than the accepted standard that preceded it, and at last women walked the streets almost nude without great hurt to themselves or the beholder.

If the indecencies that now are commonplace in books and plays had appeared twenty years ago, those responsible for the innovation would have been sent to jail and that would have ended the business.

But the first "daring" sentence or scene dared so little that its naughtiness was merely amusing, and each subsequent change was so slight that few were shocked enough to protest—so that the producers themselves ,striving always to provide a thrill, at last reached the level of common filth without realizing how they got there.

A similar process and a similar growth of callous indifference explain the present impudence of crime.

Suppose the gangs that now infest large cities had appeared in a day thirty years ago; suppose men entrusted with public money had all at once used it to gamble in stocks; suppose public servants had been found guilty of accepting bribes; suppose men in high place had as one man openly violated the laws and given mere lip service to good citizenship.

You know what the result would have been.

Newspaper headlines would have blazed with indignation; outraged citizens would have organized and armed themselves; juries and judges would have given short shrift to culprits brought before them, and traitors who escaped the lash of the law would have been coated with tar.

But corruption developed so gradually that public tolerance developed with it, and now the country's moral sense is so dead and its standards so confused that no new disclosure of corruption arouses more than a cynical shrug of indifference.

A big limb on a tree broke off and Mr. Brest gathered three bushels of cherries from it. There was no wind blowing at the time and the limb just broke and it was a good thing the cherries were just ripe. And we sure appreciated this little remembrance from Mr. Brest.

Henry Ford's Farm Science Is Applauded And Deplored

Friend Of Profitable Agriculture Express Hope That He Will Discover Effective Formula, Others Fear Loss Of Independence Or Point To Obstacles

Henry Ford's experiment in trying to find a way to profitable mass production of farm products, through the placing of thousands of acres under cultivation and operating the project by scientific methods, is generally viewed by the public as a worthy effort to solve an outstanding problem, but doubts are expressed as to even Mr. Ford's ability to overcome the obstacles to profit from the soil. Some see in the experiment the possibility of chain farming on a scale that will eliminate the small landowner and reduce farm workers to the status of European peasants.

"More power to Mr. Ford's reforming and constructive arm!" exclaims the BOSTON TRANSCRIPT, which finds that "how to get profit with less labor seems to the ordinary farmer a great secret," and expresses the hope that Mr. Ford "will lay bare the secret," in view of the generally accepted theory that "a nation's prosperity begins with the prosperity of the farmer." The DAVENPORT DEMOCRAT advises that "farms of millionaires, as a rule, are considered their playgrounds and hobbies—places to show and to entertain their friends, regardless of the cost—but with Mr. Ford it is different." The Democrat concludes: "Mr Ford is himself devoting much of his time and mind to the work. He believes the solution of the farmers' problem lies in increased efficiency and the discovery of new markets for farm products. He hopes to solve these problems. If any one man can accomplish this gigantic task, he appears to be the 'chosen' one. Success to him!"

"Well, if Mr. Ford can get alcohol from Cantaloupes, and his compatriot, Mr. Edison, can get rubber from weeds, perhaps the time is not far off when we shall see that old parable reversed and get blood out of a turnip," says the ROCHESTER TIMES-UNION. The NEW YORK EVENING POST comments: "The consumption of farm products is limited by individual capacities which no advertising can increase. Perhaps this problem can be solved by the discovery of new uses for farm products. In fact, we should not be at all surprised if Mr. Ford found ways in which the products of the soil could be turned into material for automobiles, with compressed carrots or dehydrated squash going into the chassis!"

"Twenty years ago," says the ST. LOUIS TIMES, "his method would have found wider field for improvements than now. In that time a million farmers have improved their methods. Tractors have helped. Roads have aided. Science has contributed through the radio, the telephone, lights, gas and housing. There is yet, however, vast room for advancement. * * * Immediately we shall hear that he cannot anticipate weather. We are not so sure of that. A water supply may be a part of the plan. At all events, the new plan may be one of those large things that make economic history." The CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER comments: "Ford has the courage of his convictions. Because of or in spite of this courage he has made enough so he can do some expensive experimenting in farming. Usually gentlemen farmers find their chief crop is a batch of canceled checks. Can Henry upset this tradition, too, and not only make farming pay, but gentleman farming pay? Nothing seems impossible to the man who made Lizzie's rattle heard around the world."

"It appears that efficient farming is expensive," declares the ST. LOUIS GLOBE-DEMOCRAT. "At present 100 men are employed at five dollars a day for an eight-hour day. It is hardly to be expected that the eight-hour day for farm hands will be generally adopted, or that five dollars will become the standard wage. It is doubtful if even Mr. Ford can make farming pay if it costs him $500 a day in wages. He has just begun to farm, however, and operating expenses may be reduced later. As all others have failed to solve the problem, he is welcome to try to solve it, and everybody hopes that chinch bugs, army worms and corn borers will not multiply on his farm as rapidly as new cars multiply in his factories. If he can find new uses for agricultural by-products, he will, indeed, have opened new doors of progress for farmers. But increased efficiency in wheat production, for instance, is certainly not the solution."

"The United States government, several years ago," according to the ALLENTOWN CALL, "made a study of large farming enterprises, some of the largest in the country in fact. This survey showed that, with prevailing prices for commodities, even wholesale farming with the best of machinery, the best management and a minimum of labor it was difficult to make profits and to pay labor even the low wages that are common to the farm, a wage level far below that which Mr. Ford so optimistically sets out to establish for an ancient industry."

"Now let the farmers adopt the Ford prescription and get rich," argues the SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE. "They will need the riches if they continue the treatment. The spending feature of the Ford method is not altogether new. In fact, it has been tried for a long time—by people who could afford it. William M. Evarts, once United States senator from New York, had a farm in Vermont, to which he was wont to invite friends for little vacations. Arriving one day with a party he showed his hospitality with: 'Well gentlemen, what will you have to drink; milk or champagne? It makes no difference to me, as the cost is about the same.' But the average farmer would have difficulty keeping off the sheriff at that rate. If Ford's method is to come into general use there seems to be no way except for Henry to take over the farms and hire all the farmers. Mr. Ford's surplus is not the kind that is worrying farmers."

The CHARLESTON (W. VA.) DAILY MAIL, reviewing the last generation or so, recalls that "farming on a large scale was found to be wasteful and not profitable," pointing out that "there are great farms and plantations in the southwest, to operate which large capital is as necessary as in mass production in industry," though they "employ cheap Mexican labor, labor not available in other regions." In conclusion, The Mail asks: "How will the small farmer fare in competition with these great farms, provided they came back agian? Will the small farmer disappear, as have the heads of small industries? Are the days of the great old plantations to come back again?"

"One of the most important elements in American life, the small rural landowner, will lose his financial independece and will be pushed a step nearer to the status of the European peasant," in the judgment of the WORCESTER EVENING GAZETTE. The JANESVILLE GAZETTE hopes that Mr. Ford "tires of his farm experiment," contending that "chain farming is to destroy the usage of agriculture as a way of living and take from it the combined elements of home and farm." The GREEN BAY PRESS-GAZETTE feels that "efficiency is a desirable thing to attain, but is not the sum total of life." That paper states: "The farmer, by becoming an employ and wage earner, may earn more money than a small farm would produce, but he would lose the independence, the individual initiative, and that supreme satisfaction in the possession of a producing unit complete in itself, which have been, more than anything else in this country, the foundation of our individual liberty and the bulwark of American democracy."

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

THE SOUTH

The South is not yet very much awake, it may be rousing itself but it is hard work. Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia and South Carolina are the most backward. Texas, Florida, Tennessee and North Carolina are up and coming. Mississippi repudiated its bonded indebtedness once and it is sorely tempted to do it again. It owes now about $50,000,000 which is due and it is hustling the state to pay the interest. Arkansas is filled with poor whites and poorer blacks who are for the most part trying to eke out an existance from the soil. As one man from Arkansas said: "If you gave all of the suffering people of my state a hundred acres of land apiece and two thousand dollars in cash it would not be long until they would be in about the same condition as they are now." There is a leaven of excellent people in the state and time will work changes.

In South Carolina the state government is trying to pay its debts by means of the meanest of nuisance taxes. There is the gasoline tax of six cents a gallon, Louisiana, Mississippi, Florida, Georgia and North Carolina have the same tax, but South Carolina has a twenty percent tax on theatre tickets, all drinks at soda fountains and upon all retail sales of tobacco.

doing some missionary work all through the South. While there are many of the old mansions being kept in beautiful condition there is dilapidation everywhere which a generous use of paint would remedy. Paint up the South and it would not know itself.

There is no race suicide there either among the whites or the blacks. The latter are a happy go lucky bunch. It does not take much to satisfy them and they too believe that "the Lord will provide.

King Cotton may be a little shakey on his throne but cotton is a commodity which the world wants and needs and while prices may rise and prices may fall there are cotton plantations in the South which still make money, the real business men among the planters always make something. There is also King Tobacco, Prince Rice and Prince Sugar, they are doing very well. The best bet of the South however is the Northern Capital which is being invested in the South.

Incidentally there is an art, lost in the North, which the Southern black boy still practices. Everywhere in the cities may be seen the negro bootblack with his kit over his shoulder. He smiles, showing his white teeth, and cheerily challenges you with: "Shine, boss?"

Another Millet should visit the South and paint "The Woman With The Hoe."

MIDSUMMER'S DANCE DRESSES DAINTY, CLINGING

By ALICE LANGELIER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, June 25. — Midsummer dance dresses for midsummer nights are really dream-like. Of dainty and delicate fabrics, they cling to the body in most charming manner, fluttering out about the ankles for the slow-moving dances of the moment.

For midsummer dances, Jenny makes a delightful model, called Chloe, in black, white or pale blue. Of slenderest line, it is cut in elongated points which contribute to the close fit of the hips.

Mrs. E. C. Acheson, Jr., one of the popular members of the American colony, was seen at the Ambassadours recently in Worth's "Pensee de Jeanne" in two tones of gray, a half-and-half affair with the dark and light blended in perfect harmony. A short evening coat in the darker tone is lined with almond-green velvet and Mrs. Atcheson wears green slippers to match.

White still reigns supreme for the midsummer dance. Pale yellow, both in lace and in satin are very popular, and a bright green faille frock was noticed at "Monseignur's" last week, which, by the way, is one of Paris' smartest dancing-cabarets this season, and under Russian management, which is almost as good as saying "very chic, but cher"

Dark brown has been chosen for several midsummer evening gowns. Mrs. Cyrus McCormick is wearing a tete de negre crepe romain with diamante trimming on one shoulder-strap and on the belt. And Martial et Armand are showing a coffee-brown lace over a green slip, that would make any midsummer evening far lovelier than it happens to be.

Walkin' is good for th' health—an' it might be added that a few jumps, well placed, serve t' prolong life, too.

Richards Honored By Legion Members

Testimonial Dinner Given By Members Of Perry S. Gaston Post

Hon. Bart Richards, member of the Perry S. Gaston Post of the American Legion, who will be married on Saturday to Miss Elizabeth Weingartner, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Mrs. George T. Weingartner, was honored at a testimonial dinner by Legion members and friends in the Legion Home Association building last evening.

The affair was planned as a recognition for the fine work done by Assemblyman Richards in securing the passage of a bill which would aid the children of veterans who were killed or died as the result of wounds in the late World War. The fact that Assemblyman Richards is about to be married was also taken into consideration, and the dinner served a dual purpose.

After the dinner, Commander Guy J. Wadlinger introduced Rev. Samuel Maxwell, who in a few well chosen words, presented Mr. Richards with a small gift, as a token of their esteem, but somehow or other, the gifts got mixed up and it proved to be something of a more or less pertinent nature. Each succeeding gift, was along similar lines, but in the end, the boys wound up by presenting him with a handsome bridge set, a table and chairs.

Around seventy-five were present on the occasion.

Auto And Truck In Fatal Crash

EVERETT, Pa., June 25.—John A. Cooper, 38, formerly of Altoona, but more recently of Baltimore, was fatally hurt yesterday when an automobile and a truck collided near here. Miss Sarah Stern of Warren, a Baltimore school teacher, and her sister, Miss Mollie Stern, 20, also of Warren, were seriously injured.

The three, with Sarah Stern driving, were on their way from Baltimore, and the accident was said to have occurred when Miss Stern crashed head-on into the truck, after she had turned out and passed another passenger machine.

The best way to judge anything called "modernism" is to observe whether it makes a mess of things.

Don't Rasp Your Throat With Harsh Irritants

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"

Touch your Adam's Apple with your finger. You are actually touching your larynx—this is your voice box—it contains your vocal cords. When you consider your Adam's Apple, you are considering your throat—your vocal chords.

When a lawyer makes a statement before a jury he backs it up with sound evidence and facts. Here are the facts.

Certain harsh irritants, present in all raw tobaccos—which are expelled by LUCKY STRIKE'S exclusive "TOASTING" Process—are sold by us to manufacturers of chemical compounds. In other words, the removal of these irritants in the manufacture of LUCKY STRIKE is not a mere laboratory procedure for the purpose of getting an advertising phrase—it is a definite and vitally important process in rendering LUCKY STRIKE Cigarettes less irritating than other cigarettes. Remember—LUCKY STRIKE comes to you after certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos have been expelled through the exclusive "TOASTING" Process. Kline And Succop Face Indictments For Misdemeanors

Pittsburgh Mayor And City Supplies Director Fail To Comment

GRAND JURY TO GET EVIDENCE

District Attorney Andrew Park Draws Up Charges Against Officials

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, June 25—Bills of indictment against Mayor Charles H. Kline and former City Supplies Director Bertram L. Succop for misdemeanor in office were drawn up today by District Attorney Andrew Park for presentation to the grand jury.

Criminal Court Judge John V. Moore instructed the district attorney to draw up the bills for indictment upon receipt of a presentment from the grand jury in which indictment of Kline and his former supplies director were recommended.

The presentment contained twenty-five specific counts of violations of the law governing city contracts by the mayor. Succop's indictment was recommended on twenty-three similar counts.

Neither the mayor nor Succop would comment upon the grand jury's action. At one time during the four months investigation of irregularities in awarding contracts for city supplies, Succop announced: "I'm not going to be the goat, if there is going to be a goat."

The grand jury probably will act on the indictment bills later this week.

One charge against Mayor Kline is that he purchased a $1,350 rug for his office without competitive bids. Two weeks later, according to the presentment, two more rugs for the mayor's office were purchased for $2,335 without bids.

The supplies department scandal broke last February, when John Houston, a wholesale grocer, called council's attention to the award of contracts to other than the lowest reliable bidders. [illegible] the Mayview hospital.

Investigators [illegible] at the state purchases canned [illegible] at an average of nearly $1 [illegible] per dozen cans than the city. Later it was disclosed that "high bids" were accepted for auto tires, paints, brooms, and oils and pipe.

Mayor Kline on February 24, informed council that Succop had been discharged for visible irregularities and "poor business judgment." Succop previously was reported to have refused to resign.

The grand jury this afternoon was to take up other phases of the supplies department scandal.

The civilian committee is planning to hold an informal luncheon for the guests this evening in the Elks home. Troop officers and members of the citizens' committee will gather at the Elks home at 6:30 o'clock.

Regular drill at the stable grounds at 7 p. m. Guardsmen are ordered to wear their regulation summer uniforms.

The damage done by the recent storm has been repaired. Two weeks ago the caretaker's home was damaged when lightning struck and ruined a chimney. At the last storm the drill field was damaged.

The troop horses are at present in excellent shape. Caretaker Measel has been taking extra precautions, due to the approach of the annual encampment, which will start this year the first week in August.

Expect Around Three Hundred To Attend Dinner In Grove at 6:30, Friday

MANY WILL BE AT DANCE IN EVENING

Plans for the annual reunion of the New Castle High School Alumni Association have been completed by the committee in charge, Dr. R. C. Lutz, president of the Association stated this morning and advance indications point to an attendance of approximately 300 at the picnic dinner to be served in the grove at Cascade Park, Friday evening at 6:30.

The various classes are arranging for their own dinners, but the committee will provide paper plates, coffee and table covering, and will have ice cream available for those who desire it.

A record crowd is expected to attend the dance which will be held later in the evening at the pavilion.

The committee has worked hard to make the coming reunion one of the best that has yet been held, and a good program for the evening's entertainment has been arranged.

There has been some discussion of holding next year's reunion at the Cathedral, where a dinner can be served and dancing enjoyed, later and this matter will come up for discussion at the business meeting in the grove when officers will be elected for the coming year.

Approximately ten bushels of onion sets were turned over to the garden project committee by the Kirk, Hutton and Co., hardware for the use of unemployed gardeners and can be secured by application to the Red Cross or Associated Charities.

The sets were left over at the end of the seed season and rather than throw them away or let them spoil, the hardware company turned them over to the garden committee for distribution.

Girl Scouts Give Rules For Hiking

Since early spring the New Castle Girl Scout troops have been doing a lot of hiking and if the miles the girls have covered could be placed end on end, the trail would go on awinding a good many hundred miles.

They are seasoned hikers—and they lay the credit for their success in this line to a few simple rules to be found in the pages of the Girl scout handbook. Some of the advice is to—

"Keep the feet straight when walking" is one of the rules always observed by girl scouts, who will tell you that the tracks of Indians, the first hikers in this country, were always straight ahead. Scientists have agreed that the dancing school habit of turning the toes out is one of the causes of flat feet.

Start a hike slowly, is some more good girl scout advice, and keep the pace of the slowest member of the party. "Slow and easy, goes far in a day" is the slogan for hikers. Practice deep breathing; inhale for five steps, hold your breath for five counts, then let it out, again counting five and take short steps when climbing are more good rules to remember. Girl scout leaders never permit the girls in their troops to run down hills. That causes stiffness and the best cure for that is a hot bath and another walk the next day. The proper care of the feet and properly shaped shoes are of course most important for comfortable and happy hiking.

Frequent changes of stockings, and bathing of tired feet in hot water at night and cold water in the morning will overcome most of the hiker's troubles.

For very long hikes girl scouts usually wear two or three pairs of stockings, preferably woolen, and lather the outside of them with a cake of soap, slightly moistened. Stockings must of course, be of the right size, be clean and must not have any holes in them. Shoes should be in the shape of the feet and have wide low heels.

Girl scouts are always advised to take off their shoes once or twice during a long tramp and they grease their shoes every few days with either mutton fat or some other grease.

The girl scouts pace helps to make the distance seem shorter and serves to increase endurance when covering a long distance. It consists in taking a certain number of walking steps followed immediately by the same number of running steps, and repeated alernately.

All of these details seem trifling—but—if you would have your homeward trek as happy as your start—take a tip from the girl scouts, and do as the Indians did.

Greater Than Death Is Rabbi's Theme

Regular Services At Temple Israel On Friday Evening

According to the account in the book of Genesis it was because man ate of the tree of knowledge that he became subject to death. But it was only the knowledge of good and evil that he thus acquired, but a knowledge of death itself or its appointed time still remained a mystery beyond his earthly ken.

Vainly he tried by prayer and fasting, by philosophy and science, by speculation and investigation to penetrate the unfathomable mystery, we are no nearer its solution than were the great thinkers of bygone days. All we have achieved is a certain attitude toward death, and a point of view that may prove helpful to souls in anguish.

Perhaps if we could learn to think of death as did the great thinkers of mankind and look at death as did the dramatist in the play entitled "Death Takes a Holiday", we may be able to face it with less fear and sorrow subdued. We may also learn that there are powers within us even more potent than death.

This topic will be discussed by Rabbi Menkes at the regular Friday evening services at Temple Israel tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

Sabbath morning services at 10:30.

The pulpit flowers will be placed on the altar by the Temple Sisterhood as a loving tribute to Daisy Rosenblum Levine.

Nature, not parching, Makes CAMELS Mild

HARSH tobaccos require harsh measures, like parching, to make them tolerable to the throat.

But the choice Turkish and mellow Domestic tobaccos of which Camels are blended are naturally mild and gentle. Parching would only ruin their exquisite flavor and aroma.

No matter where you buy Camels you will find them always in factory-fresh condition. Their rare flavor together with their natural moisture is air-sealed-in by moisture-proof Cellophane. We call it the Humidor Pack.

This protective wrapping is dust-proof, germ-proof and weather-proof. A great boon to the smoker.

No stinging particles of peppery dust to irritate the throat; no brackish smoke from stale tobacco; no burnt tongue from the hot smoke of dried-out cigarettes.

Just the cool, mild fragrance of choice tobaccos expertly blended and properly conditioned.

If you are not a Camel smoker, switch over for just one day. Then leave them—if you can.

Leaving the moisture-proof Cellophane on my Camel package when I open it protects the cigarettes against the odors of powder and perfume

Deals By Robins Aid Rivals; Brooklyn, Needs "A Trader Horn"

NEW YORK, June 25.—Trader Horn, that delightful old duffer running a flourishing ivory shop off the beaten African trails, might do right smart by himself as an ivory trader for the Brooklyn ball club.

The executive personed of the Flatbush organization, which carries out Brooklyn player deals, may been keen, astute business gentlemen, but they never will be hailed as outstanding David Harums. That's where old man Horn might fit in.

What is needed is some blustering high pressure salesman to dicker swap, barter, cajole and hornswoggle the rest of the league into some sort of a trade.

The open season for diamond deals has passed. The Robins had been casting their nets for some whales, baiting their hooks with pleasing inducements, but came up without even a minnow. A pitcher and righthanded hitting outfielder were the Brooklyn objectives.

As selling arguments, the Flock had Harvey Hendrick, Jack Flowers, Ray Moss, Ike Boone, among others—an assorted group of ivory—and the rest of the league looked with interest on the offerings.

Looked with such keen interest in fact that three of the quartet are now with other big league clubs while Boone is pounding the ball at a better than .400 pound in the minors. Boone will always be a good minor league player.

In disposing of the other trio, our Robins received in exchange highly valuable coin of the realm but not a single baseball chattel. Now coin of the realm is not to be sniffed at in these trying days of high rents and low wages. Money, the wise men tell us, does quite a bit of talking in its own behalf but money alone is not talking basehits and valuable runs.

In the case of the Robins, money has been a very, very muted article. It has hardly been able to raise its voice above a hoarse whisper with the rest of the league tenants. Such a candition appears to be peculiar to Flatbush.

The Phils and Pirates were able to pull a swap involving Bartell Thevenow and Willoughby and Cash; the Cubs and Pirates did business for Hornsby and Grace; Roettger and Douhit were the principles in a Red-Card exchange. But in the case of our Robins there has been a general disposition to either make outlandish demands or do a deaf and dumb act when any business was broached.

Trading Hendrick off removed the lone left handed pinch hitter the club boasted and gave the Reds not only the leading National League batter but the spark plug which started the Howley boys off on the winning road. Flowers added needed reserve strength to an already strong Cardinal infield.

Moss may pen out for the Braves But the pitcher and outfielder the Robins need are something to be left to the whimsies of a later trade wind to blow into the Flatbush back yard.

THE PARENT PROBLEM

Educate Tot In Caution, Says Woman

Mother Thinks Children Need Nature Training

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

Mrs. M. G. Sanders wrote such a good letter that I replied to her by begging her to let me use her name in full. I now have permission to do so and give her complete letter below:

"Dear Dr. Myers:

"Recently I read an article written by you advising parents to create in their children a scientific interest in the wonders of nature and to work against fear of reptiles, toads and such things. I heartily agree with you, but believe that this training should also include careful instruction concerning those things in nature which one must not touch and must not eat.

"I wonder what attitude you would have taken had the dead snake which your young son picked up in the road, been a live moccasin. Perhaps he had been taught to discriminate, but your column did not mention the need of that teaching.

"My little girl of eight, while in the garden, turned up a stone under which there was a snake. There was no excitement whatever. She called to me in a very natural tone, 'Mother, here's a snake, come and see whether or not it is a poisonous one' (which it was). She is deeply interested in all animals and plants but I do not want her to be foolhardy.

"I think the mother who allowed her child to finish eating the earthworm indeed 'unusual.' Why couldn't she have told him, as soon as she found him, that people did not eat worms, rather than waiting until he had finished it? I believe the question would arise in any normal child's mind. 'Well, if people do not eat worms why did you stand by and allow me to finish that one without telling me so'? I feel that this mother was rather anxious to display her very modern ideas of child training without exhibiting a surplus of common sense. The child might decide next time to lunch upon a poisonous 'toad-stool.'

"Training a child to be cautious of what he eats and touches is more necessary than teaching him an appreciation of the wonders of nature. To develop a well-balanced child one must strike a happy medium, which I hope to accomplish in my children."

Another mother writes:

"Dear Dr. Myers: I have a nervous young son of eleven. While at times he seems improved, again he becomes irritated, self-conscious and dreadfully absent-minded. Of late it seems to be growing more noticeable. Also the bed-wetting has not been cured. For weeks he will go along O. K., then each night for a long period return to former habit. He chews his nails and shows signs of selfishness, though I honestly feel it's thoughtlessness more often. He has a keen mind, but try as I may, these things I've been unable to overcome. Am I right in thinking it's the family interference? With three generations in one home there is plenty of it. What would you suggest"?

Answer: Patiently await reduction of the number of generations living in your home. In the meanwhile try to persuade every one to be sympathetic with this child, all keeping themselves calm, talking in low, quiet voices, never scolding the child for his fidgets, nail-biting or bed-wetting, helping him to feel more secure, to get more rest, exposed to less excitement and fatigue, with opportunities to share and get satisfaction from giving up. Don't do too much for him. Let him have a few definite responsibilities. Make few commands but don't repeat them, and be very liberal with worthy praise.

NECESSITY FOR A TELESCOPE IN LUNAR OBSERVATION

By Arthur DeV. Carpenter

The moon, observed with the unaided eye: is a very wonderful spectacle: Certain parts of its surface may be seen with naked eye to possess a rather dark appearance. Those darker areas are vast plains at lower levels than the other brighter regions. With assistance of the opera glass one will be enabled to see the rough surface of our lunar neighbor. A small telescope will make the lunar craters more vivid, while a six-inch refracting telescope, with magnifying power of 500 diameters, will bring the moon visually within 500 miles of the earth. Areas less than one-half mile wide may be seen distinctly.

Expert Predicts Tree Pest Plague

CANAAN, Conn., June 24.— The hill country of Western Massachusetts and Connecticut and Eastern New York may be swept by a tree pest this summer, in the opinion of Dr. W. E. Britton, state entymologist. Known as the "Saddled Prominent," the pest made an outbreak on Canaan mountain last summer and a slight one in Kent. The last great attack occurred in 1917 and 1918 when it swept large sections of New York and New England. Dr. Britton finds the pest breaks out in two successive years in each case and subsides for several years. His observations lead him to believe a serious outbreak is nearing.

The area of Iceland is 39,709 square miles.

Busy Boston Street Built Over Grave

BOSTON, June 24.—Millions of pedestrians have traversed School street, in Boston's business district, during the past half century without realizing that beneath them was a tomb.

Workmen engaged in excavation work near King's Chapel dug into the bidden burial chamber, which was found to hold several skeletons. A coffin plate discovered in the vault bore the inscription, "Francis Gray, 1861, Aetat 80."

The records of the historic chapel, dating back to 1749, contained no reference to the tomb. It is thought the tomb originally was on the chapel lawn and is now under the sidewalk because of a long-ago relocation of School street.

Woman Jurist To Speak Today At Bar Convention

Judge Sara M. Soffel, Allegheny County, Will Speak To State Lawyers

PEPPER WILL BE BANQUET TALKER

(International News Service)

BEDFORD SPRINGS, Pa., June 25.—Judge Sara M. Soffel of Allegheny county, Pennsylvania's only woman jurist, was to address members of the State Bar association at their annual convention here today on the topic "The Interpretation and Application of the Scire Facias Act of 1929."

Charles A. Boston of New York, president of the American Bar association, who addressed the members of the organization yesterday urged a return to normal living habit as the best means of solving the present economic problem. The speaker decried the practice of many advocates of law obedience who he claimed failed to distinguish between respect and duty.

Should Study Bill.

"I think it would profit us as a means of better orientation if we should carefully study the origins of our bills of rights, and discover how many of their tenets arose from persistent opposition to existing law, in the interest of greater individual freedom," he declared.

It was announced that George Wharton Pepper, former United States senator, will speak at the annual bar association banquet here tonight in place of Judge George W. W. Maxey of Lackawanna county, who was prevented from fulfilling the engagement because of injury to his hand.

John B. Brooks of Erie, president of the organization, called upon his fellow attorneys to combat the practice of law by unauthorized persons and companies.

To Name Committee.

"Because of the close relationship existing between banks, trust companies and members of the bar, it would seem that an amicable arrangement could be made whereby they would limit themselves to activities properly within their own spheres," the president urged.

Appointment of a committee to study the activities of individuals and corporations in this respect was authorized by the association.

The man who posed for the statue of the soldier that tops the memorial on the diamond is alive and doing well today. He is none other than C. H. Andrews, secretary and treasurer of the New Castle Mining & Clay Products Company, who recalls with great pride that when he was about 20 years of age he donned a uniform of the Grand Army of the Republic and posed for the sculptor to help make the statue. Next time you pass the diamond, particularly at night, when powerful electric flood lights outline the soldier against the darkness, be sure to take a good look. Andrews recalls that he was selected to pose, and stood still, rifle in hand, for hours at a time while a sculptor fashioned his figure. The contract for the statue was made with a stone contractor, one George Knowles, who had his office in a building that stood on the site of the present Y. M. C. A.

Asa Hess of Kurtz street, owns a picture of Forbes Field in Pittsburgh on June 30, 1909, when the grand place was opened with a game between Pittsburgh and Chicago and won by the latter team. The newspapers of the day called the arena the "world's largest and finest baseball field."

Cities Lack Of Sleep As Cause Of Auto Crashes

HARRISBURG, June 25.—Recently the National Safety Council expressed the opinion "that the accident problem would solve itself if the North American Continent could be put to bed at 10 P. M."

Following the thought that lack of sleep is responsible for many automobile accidents, the division of safety of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles has been stuying some of the "accident prone" operators listed with it. Particular attention is being paid to those operators, especially truck drivers, who try to catch up with their sleep on the job, or whose delayed sleep catches up with them.

One case is that of a truck driver charged with five accidents in less than two years. W. W. Matthews, Chief of the Division, found the operator was of normal intelligence, his reactions to certain tests were good, and he gave no evidence of mental or physical disability. He reported his sleeping and working hours as being very irregular and he admitted to extreme nervousness when he did not get enough sleep. The examination, Matthews said, indicated that he should be considered a safe driver only after he had six to eight hours sleep every day.

PAINTER, Wyo.—Wyoming cow ponies, range cattle and dude wranglers have been called in to assist in the spending of a fortune. Mrs. E. Marshall Field, divorced wife of Marshall Field III, who is said to receive a million dollars a year alimony, has leased the Dewey Riddle ranch here and plans to give her eastern friends a taste of life in the great open spaces this summer. She will have 150 saddle horses and a dozen wranglers at her command.

Russia's Experience To Be Told At World's Economic Congress

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, June 25.—Soviet Russia's experience with economic planning will be told officially at an international meeting for the first time at the World Industrial Relations Congress to be held at Amsterdam, Holland, according to announcement here by Mary Van Kleech, vice-president of the Industrial Relations Association.

The subject of the congress is social economic planning and its possibilities for correcting the present lack of balance between production and purchasing power in the different nations and in international trade.

The experience of the United States with scientific management, of Italy with Fascist control of industry and the efforts of Germany, France and other countries with national economic planning will be analyzed.

Representatives of the Soviet Union took part in the International Eccnomic Conference at Geneva in 1927, which was before the advent of the Soviet's Five Year Plan. The Soviet Union was represented at Geneva on May 13 of this year at a meeting of the European Union Commission of the League of Nations.

The coming Industrial Relations Congress which will be held August 23, differs from these meetings in that it is not official or governmental. It will present the first international occasion for economists, engineers, social scientists, educators, bankers, and industrial executives of the United States and other countries to sit down with comparable representatives of the Soviet Union and exchange ideas and experiences informally.

Among the Americans who are scheduled to lead the discussions at Amsterdam and their subjects are:

Edward A. Filene, of William Filene's Sons Co., Boston, on "Mass Distribution and Standards of Living."

Dr. H. S. Persons, managing director of the Taylor Society, New York City, on "Principles and Practices of Scientific Management."

Dr. Lewis Lorwin, of the Institute of Economics, Brookings Institution, Washington, D. C., on "The Problem of Planned Economy."

Morris L. Cooke, fomerly director of public works of the City of Philadelphia and recently appointed by Governor Roosevelt a member of the St. Lawrence Power Authority, on "The Industrial Employment Code."

Professor Joseph P. Chamberlain, of Columbia University, on "Experience and Potentialities in International Economic Treaties."

Vanderbilt May Answer Charges Filed By Wife

Mrs. Mary Davidson Weir Logan Vanderbilt, Files Cruelty Charges

ARNO FILES HIS DIVORCE SUIT

(International News Service)

RENO, Nev., June 25.—Two more divorce suits were added to the increasingly complicated domestic troubles of the Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr's and Peter Arnos, as Reno awaited Vanderbilt's answer to the charges of cruelty made by Mrs. Mary Davidson Weir Logan Vanderbilt.

Under his rightful name of Curtis A. Peters, Jr., Arno yesterday filed suit for divorce from his wife, Lois Long, New York writer and she immediately filed a cross-complaint asking for the decree on the same charge of cruelty.

The two families have been in the limelight more than usual the last ten days since Vanderbilt stated he had gone after the New York artist with an empty gun for undue attentions paid Mrs. Vanderbilt. Attorneys for the Vanderbilts after a conference said there was no chance their case would be settled without a contest.

The young folks had a gay time toasting weiners at a fire in the yard, and played games on the lawn until a late hour. Mrs. Gibbons and four of her daughters will go tomorrow to State College, where the young ladies will study during the summer term. Miss Carrie has been invited to be a contributor next year to the college paper, The Old Main Bell, an honor which it is very hard to gain and which is seldom conferred.

The Woman's Mission Circle of the Providence Baptist church near Ellwood City, desired to give thirty dollars more this year over and above their regular amount, so decided to hold a birthday tea, and ask each one to give a penny for each year of life. Miss Florence Schumaker of Gardner, invited the ladies to meet at her home on Tuesday of this week. After a little time spent socially a sheet of questions with blank space for answers to be written was given to each one. Mrs. Ralph Steffler won the prize for having the greatest number of correct answers. Mrs. Jennie Jones, and her daughters, Luella and Lillian, Miss Florence Schumaker and Mrs. Stevenson served the tea which Mrs. Routledge poured. Baskets of small cakes were served with the tea. Mrs. Samuel Hazen, the Circle treasurer, then placed a tray in the center of the room and in a neat little speech explained the object of the meeting and asked each one to come and bring her contribution as her name was called. There were several dollar bills cast into the tray, whether, from love for the cause or fear that the awful secret of the age of the giver would be revealed is not known. Mrs. Routledge the pastor's wife brought a kindly message to the wife of the former pastor and presented her with a handsome handbag, a gift from the women of the Circle. This token of good will is greatly appreciated. The money on the tray was counted and thirteen dollars and seventeen cents were given to the treasurer. One dollar was given last week to this fund and a number of the members were not at Gardner and they will give their share so the prospect is bright for getting the thirty dollars. Those who were present at this birthday tea were Mrs. Frederick Householder and daughter Mrs. Ed. Brelloch, Mrs. Elwin Hazen and Mary Elizabeth, Mrs. Charley Hazen and daughter Mrs. Ed. Templeton, Mrs. Routledge, Mrs. Roy Cable, Mrs. Pierce Hazen and daughter, Mrs. Jennie Jones and Luella and Lillian. Hazen, Mrs. Eugene Wise, Miss Katheryn Czar, Mrs. Gilbert Hazen, Mrs. Anna Rugojcza, Miss Florence Schumaker and her mother.

Dr. Macartney Heard By Record Crowd Wednesday

Western Pennsylvania Bible Conference Meetings Grow In Interest

A record crowd heard Dr. Clarence Edward Macartney, of Pittsburgh, last night at the Western Pennsylvania Bible Conference being held in the First Presbyterian Church of Slippery Rock. A public address system had been installed, and amplifiers permitted the overflow crowd on the church lawn to hear Dr. Macartney's great message on: "The Witnessing Church." In the afternoon Dr. Macartney spoke on, "The Christ of Isaiah," giving a wonderful portrayal of the despised, rejected, sorrowful, reconciling and triumphant Christ.

This evening Dr. R. E. Neighbour will give the first of a series of messages during the remaining days of the conference. Dr. Neighbour is well known in this city, having held Bible conferences in the First Presbyterian and First Baptist churches. He is an able and interesting expositor. His messages will be chiefly along the lines of prophetic truth

One change in the program was announced. Dr. Walter E. McClure will speak Saturday afternoon at 3:30 instead of his brother Rev. H C. McClure.

The program for Friday is as follows: 10:00 a. m. devotional study, Rev. J. R. Loughner: 2:30 p. m. "Jesus Christ Among the Churches" by Rev. J. K. MacGillivray: 3:30 p. m. "A Shifting Satan and a Supplicating Savior," by Rev. S. C. Elder: 7:30 p. m. address by Dr. R. E. Neighbour. All services being on Eastern Standard Time.

Another Fake Call Irks Chief Lynn

Joker Who Calls Out Three Fire Companies Today Is Being Sought

Aroused by another false alarm at noon today when three companies of firemen were forced to respond to Beaver and South streets after a male voice telephoned central station that a fire was in progress, Fire Chief Lynn today again sought the assistance of the telephone company to trace down the person who telephoned.

The call is believed to have been sent by the same person who played a joke on the department on June 16 by combining the telephone number 417 to serve as a call number and also the number of a house supposedly on fire.

On that date firemen from central and the second ward, the latter station's telephone number being 417, were tipped off that a fire was in progress at 417 Boyles avenue by a man who telephoned the second ward station.

Superintendent of Public Safety Reeves and Chief Lynn who arrived at the scene with fire apparatus could not find a fire. An attempt to trace the caller with the telephone company proved futile.

At noon today central station's B company as well as No. 1 and No. 6 apparatus speeded to the scene of the supposed fire.

An investigation is underway.

Bees Swarm On Highland Avenue Home Last Night

Settle On Trellis At Marks Home At 1809 Highland Avenue

Bees swarmed last night, from goodness knows where at the residence of C. W. Marks, 1809 Highland avenue, and there was plenty doing until they were finally hived late in the evening by H. M. Badger of East Washington street extension and his assistants.

The bees settled on the rose trellis of the Marks residence and seemed contented there, but as the inmates of the place did not care for them as regular company, the bee expert was called and finally hived them.

There was at least one victim of the bees and that was J. W. Thompson, Jr., little son of Sergeant and Mrs. J. W. Thompson, who was stung on the leg. He is however recuperating this morning and none the worse of the attack of the bees.

Mr. Badger estimated the number of bees at five pounds, which means that there were thousands of the little honeymakers in the group that was finally hived.

Vegetarianism Is Easy To Practice In Summer, Dr. Clendening Avers

Calm Necessary For Scientific Truth Is Apt To Be Lost When Subject Of Foods Is Under Discussion

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The subject of vegetarianism is always discussed with heat. It does not seem to lend itself to a calm and judicious consideration. Both sides of the controversy begin to call each other names, and the air loses the calm necessary for scientific truth.

It is pretty hard at this time of year, when corn on the cob, and new potatoes, and new peas and beans and strawberries, are coming into market, to view vegetarianism with complete disfavor. My advice is to be a vegetarian during June and July and to more or less lapse from the strict path during the remainder of the year.

Strict vegetarianism has, of course never been practiced by any human being. Even Bernard Shaw and Upton Sinclair got some milk while they were young. That accounts, in my opinion for "Man and Superman' although I am not sure what accounts for the novels of Mr. Sinclair.

There are, as you probably know, several kinds of vegetarians. The extremists believe in eating only fruit and nuts. Their theory is that food grown away from contact with the earth, ripening in the pure air and sunshine, out towards the sky and the clouds must partake of some of those heavenly qualities and be good for the soul. It all sounds very poetical, but it is awfully tough on the disposition.

The laco-ovo-vegetarians do not eat meat—first, because it seems cruel to them to sacrifice animals for that purpose and, secondly, because they think meat is unwholesome and tends to physical and moral degeneration. But they allow eggs and milk and dairy products generally.

They are wise in this because it is difficult for most human digestive tracts to function economically without some animal protein. Animal forms of protein are more easily digested than are vegetable proteins. The body must have some protein and it is, of course, possible to obtain it from certain vegetables such as beans and peas and grains in considerable quantities, but it is not easy for the human digestive tract to convert this form of protein into utilizable material.

The most carefully conducted experiments on a vegetarian diet for carnivorous or omnivorous animals were those of Slonaker, who tried to bring up rats on a strictly vegetarian diet. These animals grew well for a time, but never got bigger than about three-fifths the size of rats fed on a general diet. The vegetarian rats lived on the average, 555 days, while the others lived 1,026 days.

So far, then, as any proof that vegetarians live longer than "carrion eaters" the evidence is just the other way.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Six pamphlets of Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin for each, and a self addressed stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," 'Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes" "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Reveals Human Life 100,000 Years Ago

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 24.—Discovery of the skull of a Neanderthal child near Jerusalem is believed by archaeologists here to have given undeniable evidence that human life existed in what is now Palestine 60,000 to 100,000 years ago.

Report of the discovery in a cave at Athlit was made to Professor George Grant MacCurdy of Yale, Director of the American School of Prehistoric Research, by Miss Dorothy Garrod, woman explorer in charge of the school's joint expedition with the British School of Archaeology.

Previous remains had indicated man inhabited the section as far back as 30,000 years ago.

It was Miss Garrod who discovered a Neanderthal skull at Gibraltar in 1926.

Aching, Swollen Feet

Money Back Says Eckerd's of New Castle, Inc. If Emerald Oil Doesn't Do Away With All Soreness, Swelling and Distress in 24 Hours.

No sensible person will continue to suffer from those intense agonizing throbbing foot pains when every well stocked drug store has Moone's Emerald Oil and sells it with an absolute guarantee of satisfaction or money back.

Your feet may be so swollen and inflamed that you think you can't go another step. Your shoes may feel as if they are cutting right into the flesh. You feel sick all over with the pain and torture—You'd give anything to get relief, wouldn't you? Then try this:

Two or three applications of Moone's Emerald Oil and in fifteen minutes the pain and soreness disappears. A few more applications at regular intervals and the swelling reduces.

And best of all any offensive odor is gone for good—It's a wonderful formula—this combination of essential oils with camphor and other antiseptics so marvelous that thousands of bottles are sold annually for healing broken varicose or swollen veins.

Unemployed Men Keep Gardens In Good Condition

Experiment Here Is Producing Fine Results, Survey Of District Shows

EVEN WOMEN HAVE SPLENDID GARDENS

Thousands of dollars worth of vegetables are grown by the unemployed of New Castle, both men and women having enlisted in the project to aid themselves during the depression by raising their own foodstuffs.

A survey of the gardens in the city, made in company with Secretary Potter of the Lawrence County Chapter, American Red Cross, Wednesday afternoon, revealed some wonderful gardens in various sections of the city.

The Walmo plot was visited first. There are 22 gardens in this five-acre plot which was donated for the use of the unemployed by Mr. Vaughn. One of the best gardens in this plot is that belonging to two widow women residing on the south side. Their crops are growing splendidly and show that much work has been put into the project by them.

Everything in the garden seemed in a flourishing condition, and indicates the pride of ownership, which those engaged in the project are taking. There were several of the gardens which need to be worked, the weeds having secured a hold in several spots, but this can be easily remedied.

The Rose avenue district was visited next, where 45 gardens are being worked on approximately ten acres of ground contributed by the Weingartner Realty Company.

Corn Knee High

These gardens too are in excellent condition. Beans, corn, lettuce, onions, tomatoes, cabbage, etc., is growing lucuriantly. The gardens in this plot seemed to be a little better cared for, more work of cultivation having been put into the project here, and some fine gardens have resulted.

The inspection party then went on to the Clifton Flats district. The ground out there seems to be of the finest quality, and corn that was knee high was found in abundance. Carl Gardner and Charles McClymonds, two World War veterans have wonderful gardens.

The people in the Clifton Flats district have their own ground or made arrangements to secure it, but most of it was plowed and the seeds furnished by the local charitable organizations.

From here, a visit was made to the district in the vicinity of the city disposal plant. Here, possible forty or fifty acres of ground are under cultivation on ground owned by the city and the Pennsylvania R R. Company. A visit to this spot is worth the while of any person interested in gardening. There are probably several hundred people with gardens in this district, all of which are in the finest state of cultivation. Those engaged in gardening here are keeping their gardens in wonderful shape.

Some of the seed and plants for these gardens was furnished by the gardening committee, but mostly, the gardens are private projects.

Gardens Plentiful

Even in the Mahoning avenue district, some splendid gardens are to be found, some of them lying to the north of the Gardner avenue viaduct. Women were found working some of these gardens.

There were a number of other gardens in the Sheep hill district, which it was impossible to get to, but here the owners are said to be taking good care of their projects.

Everywhere one looks, one can see gardens. More ground is under cultivation this year than at any time since the war, and hundreds of New Castle people are going to keep the family larger supplied with fresh vegetables of their own raising this summer.

Assistance in these garden projects was given close to 500 people in the city of New Castle alone, in addition to those in other sections of the county, evidencing the interest shown by those in unfortunate circumstances, who are willing to help themselves.

Y.P.C.U. Convention At Lebanon U. P.

Hundred And Fifty Attend Gathering Of Young People

The annual Mercer Presbytery Y. P. C. U. convention was held in the Lebanon U. P. church north of New Wilmington on Tuesday afternoon and evening. About one hundred and fifty persons were in attendance.

The convention was opened by Miss Genevieve McFarland who presided during the afternoon. Miss Isabelle Dick welcomed the delegates on behalf of the entertaining society, and Mr. Harry Black of Mercer responded on behalf of those present. Rev. R. A. Foster, missionary to India, who is at present in America on furlough, brought the afternoon address. Rev. Foster spoke of the progress of the mission work in India and of the problems which confront the missionary and the native Christian, closing his well received address by a challenge to the young people for their continued interest in, and support of the mission work in India. Rev. Henry Ostermeier, popular secretary of young people's work, discussed problems which have come to him from society leaders. The convention voted in the business period to send two official delegates to the national Y. P. C. U. convention to be held at Lake Geneva, Wisconsin, in August.

The evening session began with a devotional period conducted by the Lebanon society with Tom Sarver, presbyterial president, presiding.

William Turnbull spoke briefly of the New Wilmington Missionary Conference. Rev. Henry W. Eddy, of Akron, Ohio, gave an inspiring address on the convention theme Conquer with Christ, stressing the value of determination and purpose on the part of the young people to meet successfully the problems of life.

Why be satisfied with SECOND-CHOICE

WHEN

costs no more?

The department of business research of a great public institution asked 205,000 representative motorists this question:

"Regardless of price, convenience, etc., what tire do you consider the best tire made?"

Look at the chart; the answers totaled there tell the whole story.

They tell it so plainly they suggest another question, likewise straight to the point:

"Why be satisfied with a second-choice tire when the first-choice costs no more?"

Fact is, experienced tire-buyers aren't.

That's why more people ride on Goodyear Tires than any other kind!

HOW CAR OWNERS VOTED ON THE QUESTION

Valley View Cemetery Topic Of Discussion

At Meeting Last Night, Committee Appointed To Look Up All Stockholders

At a specially called meeting of all members, officers and people interested in the Valley View Cemetery Association, held Wednesday night in the Mahoning school building, a committee of three men were appointed to confer with the original stockholders in the association and to see what they think about re-organizing and making the cemetery the thing of beauty it was years ago.

The meeting was called in order to form plans for repairing and putting the Valley View cemetery, located at the west end of Clayton street, in the condition it was in over ten years ago. Nothing at all in the way of repair work has been done for the past ten years, except a little work before Memorial Day.

Fences are down, lots are in great need of attention, the splendid chapel needs repairing and it is hoped that a new and enthusiastic organization can be formed and a fund raised to provide for the needed work.

Dr. T. M. Shaffer was chairman of the meeting. The men appointed to make investigations regarding the situation are C Harvey Milholland, H. E. Rhodes and Dr. Shaffer.

Between 35 and 40 interested people were in attendance at last night's meeting, the second of such meetings held in recent years. When the committee completes the investigation, another meeting will be called, and a new organization will be formulated.

The cause of the cemetery neglect was that directors of the association have died and no meetings were held to elect new officers to fill their place. The drives through the cemetery need re-surfacing and the buildings are in need of some coats of paint.

The Valley View cemetery was chartered in 1894, and 85 shares of stock at 100 dollars a share were held by 17 men.

LOOKING BACK

IN NEW CASTLE

In these days, when a horse is almost as rare a sight on the streets of New Castle as an automobile was 30 years ago, it's almost inconceivable to most people to believe that in the Civil war days this was one of the horse buying centers for horses used by the Union army and that there were often hundreds of horses quartered here for inspection by the purchasing agents of the United States government. Nevertheless, such was the case in the days of 1861-65. There is a man in the city of New Castle at the present time who remembers those days, even though he was but a small barefoot boy at the time. The Knox barn was the center for keeping these horses pending their acceptance or rejection by the representatives of the government. This barn was located on the present site of the Neisner store and was of rather large proportions. There was a fenced in barnyard extending approximately northeast from the barn and the horses came in and out of a gate at the upper side awaiting inspection along the creek side of what is now Water street. The line extended from Washington street to the South Mill street bridge and these groups included may scores of horses. The horses secured were very good on the average and were used for the cavalry, batteries and other forms of service in the Union armies.

Tomorrow—When turkeys were driven through the city in large flocks for their destination being Philadelphia.

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK June 25.—That miniature golf course behind Roxy's movie mansion was a huge glittering desolation last night. What a contrast to the uproarious midnight crowds of a year ago! They're paying plenty of rent, too, on that plot of Broadway's back yard.

But as long as the night clubs find pickings thin, as long as there are no more crowds spilling out of hidden and lighted doorways to putt away the tag-end of large evenings, that mid-town midget links will languish. It is in the heart of the Mazda jungle, where liveried night club doormen prowl.

Time was when gentlemen in top hats with decollette ladies found golfing at 3 a. m. hugely diverting—and made the course hugely profitable. There are not many of these now. Those who appear pass on, apparently in a hurry to get home. Mark up another unplumbed psychological shift to the Broadway area!

Across the street some optimistic impresario has floated a new diversion—bowling until dawn!

So far as I know, these are the only outdoor alleys in town, certainly the only alleys which thrive on the female trade. And here business is somewhat better than on the tees opposite. Bowling is more than subtly different from golf, anyway; there is a tendency to roll up your sleeves for it and to perspire. The trade is less gilded but steadier.

At the far end of the lot four girls—of the chorus, the department store counters or Park avenue, you can't tell any more—were having a swell time. Near the entrance a quartet of young men were playing for money, damply, with nirsute arms and great consternation. At one of the little, summery green tables sat a morose man in a beaver hat, staring moodily at the lighted lozenge of the Empire State tower, away off. Probably a columnist. Or the proprietor of the golf establishment opposite.

"GROSSLY EXAGGERATED"

Dr. Arthur Torrance, reported drowned in the Congo river many weeks ago, to the tune of much newspaper lamentation, is back in New York to deny the report. Dr. Torrance worked out the link between the tsetse fly and sleeping sickness and is the author of "Tracking Down the Enemies of Man.' He is plump, wears great black mustachios and likes to barge in on his friends in the middle of the night to engage them in scientific controversy.

STACCATO STUFF

Ernest Lawford, the actor, booked next for the Nancy Carroll vehicle, "Personal Maid", writes in that he can't understand why people always get out of breath remarking on the "record" run of "Abie's Irish Rose" . . . "I was in 'Peter Pan,' with Maude Adams and nobody dropped an exclamation point about the play's run of 811 performances!" Tamara Geva, that amazing girl whose brisk strutting and amazing symbolism with her hands made her the sensation of "Three's a Crowd," pronounces her name with the G soft—not as in "Geva little girl a big h a n d !" . . . . Maurice Chevalier learned English in a German prison camp, whither he was hustled in the first days of the war, still wearing his red Zouave breeches. . . . An English schoolmaster exchanged language lessons with Maurice to keep them both from going loony. . .

The newest pastime of the sophisticates is collecting paper matchpacket covers . . . I saw a sleek Park avenue couple exchanging the things avidly in a taxi-cab alongside mine the other day . . . From Rolls'es to fifteen-and-fives, from Oriental rugs to match covers! . . . On the same sliding scale I should be down to a wheelbarrow!

BEAUTY MAGNATE

There was Earl Carroll—eating shrimp curry and chutney at the Ceylon India Inn, inexpensive, rather dingy but "genuine" restaurant a step from Broadway in 49th street. The dark-skinned waiters speak little English, though they been there years. This is probably the only restaurant in the sector to which Carroll could go without having the management make a fuss over him. He is pale and looks tired. He is in the thick of the new show—and his dazzling new theatre where chorus girls will receive a minimum of $100 a week. The old low end of the ladder was $75.

Two young girls cross the room, giggling and watching Carroll. They know that a word from him can change their lives. Will he speak it? WILL he? Is he taking notice, seeing them at all? He has been known to hail strange girls on the street, ask them to go on the stage.

The girls hover a long moment at the head of the stair, preening themselves subtly—or not so subtly.

Then the moment passes. They leave. Carroll is talking quietly about costuming costs, fingering the white flower in his coat lapel. . . .

It was almost a year ago that I saw George Arliss at that same table savoring the hot eastern fare delicately.

A buggy auctioned off at Winchester, Va., brought only 40 cents. Such vehicles are in the unfortunate position of many other out-of-date articles—not now useful and not yet eligible to be classed as "early Americana."—The Washington Evening Star.

Theodore Dreiser Talks To Miners

Famous Novelist Visits Pittsburgh Coal Strike Area For Material

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, June 25.—Theodore Dreiser, the novelist who came here to do research work for his projected book on economics, had his own troubles with the striking miners. He interviewed some 20 men to get facts on their living conditions.

Dreiser asked one Italian miner if he and his family had any entertainment aside from life's bare necessities.

"Sure, I play the cornet," was the reply.

The author visited several mines today.

Park Pool Water Found Sanitary

Dr. Logan Clendenning's advice about keeping swimming pool water safe from infectious germs among bathers, who might possibly transmit disease, is followed in treating the swimming pool water at Cascade Park.

At the close of a busy day at the pool, bacteriological tests showed the water to be up to the standard required for drinking water. The latest method of sterilization involves the use of chloramine, which removes both germs and odors and does not in any manner, affect the bather, but on the contrary, renders the water more pleasant.

The water in the pool is regularly changed to insure its constant purity, and visitors will find it one of the most sanitary pools in this section.

There has been so much rain in the eastern states that golfers no longer can attribute their scores to the bad condition of greens and fairways. The weather produces nothing but crisis after crisis.—The New York Sun.

Auto Runs 59 Miles On Gallon Of Gas

Automobile engineers who worked for years in an effort to reduce gasoline consumption have found the solution in a marvelous invention that fits all cars. An actual test made by one of the engineers showed 59 miles on a gallon of gas. Thousands of car owners have already installed this new invention. They not only report amazing gas savings but are also surprised to find quicker pickup, instant starting, smoother running motors and more power. The Whirlwind Mfg. Co., Dept. 887-S, Station C, Milwaukee, Wisc., for a limited time is offering a free device to those who will help introduce it. They also need men everywhere to make up to $100 weekly in their own territory taking care of local business. Write them at once for free sample and big money making offer.—Adv.

Wilkins' Polar Sub Towed Across Irish Channel From Cork To Donport, Eng.

(International News Service)

LONDON, June 25.—Sir Hubert Wilkins' submarine Nautilus, in which he hopes to cruise under the ice of the Arctic sea, today was being towed across the Irish channel from Cork Ireland, to Donport, England. At Devonport the Nautilus' engines, which broke down in mid-Atlantic, will be repaired.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute.

REACHING ST. LOUIS AFTER HIS DARING RIDE FROM THE PACIFIC COAST, MARCUS WHITMAN CONFERRED WITH SENATOR BENTON AND OTHER WESTERN STATESMEN WHO WERE WORKING ZEALOUSLY FOR THE ACQUISITION AND SETTLEMENT OF THE OREGON COUNTRY.

THEN WHITMAN HURRIED TO WASHINGTON, WHERE HE PLEADED OREGON'S CAUSE BEFORE PRESIDENT TYLER, AND BEGGED THE SECRETARY OF WAR TO BUILD PROTECTING FORTS ALONG THE OREGON TRAIL.

DOCTOR WHITMAN WENT ON TO BOSTON TO REPORT TO THE AMERICAN MISSIONARY BOARD. THIS DONE, HE RETURNED TO THE MISSOURI FRONTIER. HERE HE FOUND WHAT HE HAD SO EARNESTLY PRAYED FOR,—A GREAT EMIGRANT CARAVAN READY TO START FOR THE PACIFIC COAST.

FIRST WEEK OF CONFERENCE IS NEAR COMPLETION

Fifty At Camp East Brook Taking Course Offered By Erie Conference

First week of the Queen Esther School of Home Missions, being held at Camp East Brook, is nearing conclusion, and it is proving to be one of the most successful such affairs ever held by the young people's department of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Erie Conference.

There are fifty girls at camp, from various cities of the conference. New Castle is represented by four or five women.

Regular programs of study and recreation have been carried out, a daily schedule being followed closely. In the evenings a number of special activities have proven of great interest.

A second group will arrive at the camp next week.

Sailors Give Queer Answers In "Exam"

(International News Service)

SAN DIEGO, Calif., June 25.—Sailors in training at the Naval base here submitted puzzling answers to a list of questions given them in an examination. The answers were forwarded for publication in the United States Naval Institute periodical. The strange answers follow:

Capstan—A commanding officer.

Compass—Small stove.

Scupper—A utensil used for drinking; hence the expression, "a scupper coffee."

Hatch—A box where eggs are kept.

Halyards—A nautical name for impishly inclined sailors.

Binnacle—A bivalve that fastens on the bottom.

Sextant—One who officiates at funerals at sea.

Tiller—Officer in charge of the payroll, sometimes called the paying tiller.

Tack—To handle the boat diplomatically.

"They've got salt water on the brain," was given as the cause for the replies.

Prisoners Speed Outdoor Work At Rockview Farms

HARRISBURG, June 25.—With the distribution of more than 1,000,000 trees and seedlings from the nursery stock and the planting of, and preparing for later planting of more than 100 acres of garden vegetables, the outdoor activities upon which many State institutions depend to supplement their supplies have been speeded up during the past few weeks at the Rockview State Penitentiary, according to a report to John L. Hanna, State Secretary of Welfare.

The nursery at the Rockview institution is extensive and in April of this year shipped 1,268,553 units of stock which were divided as follows: trees for reforestration, 1,263,250; shade trees, 2152; ornamentals, 1785; and shrubbery, 1366. This shipment virtually completed all orders to the Rockview nursery this year, with the exception of orders from the U. S. Forest Service at Warren.

New Castleite Is Back With Story Of Desert Storm

Thirty Autos Held Up Day By Great Sand Storm In Desert Of Arizona

Back from California after an absence of two years, Harry S. Fisher, of San Diego, formerly of New Castle, who is visiting his brother J. Johnston Fisher, 1305 Delaware avenue, tells a tale of a big desert storm in Arizona that virtually imprisoned motorists in 30 cars that were traveling eastward recently.

Although Mr. Fisher has driven, he says, 175,000 miles in his automobile in the past, the recent trip to New Castle gave him the first idea of the size and uncomfortable features of a sand storm in the desert.

The storm came up in the desert a few miles outside of Ludlow, Arizona. The roadway was piled high with sand and some 30 automobiles were held up for a day. Water, Fisher declares, was at a premium. Luckily for the New Castle motorist, he carried two desert water bags and was able to satisfy his thirst.

Fisher tells of a second storm on his journey that suddenly turned a warm day into a cold one and was replete with snow!

Speaking of roads in the region thru which he traveled the visitor declared that the highways thru New Mexico, to Albuquerque, to Santa Fe are like a "washboard."

On the pass to Trinidad, Colo., the roads are among the best in that state.

Arriving 50 miles from Topeka, Kan., the traveler experienced a "mud storm" that covered his machine with thick mud.

Continuing on his way to New Castle Fisher said he found many idle men on the roads.

"From Kansas City to St. Louis, up to Indianapolis, Ind., to Dayton, O., to Columbus, O., to Wheeling, W. Va., to Pittsburgh and then to New Castle there was lots of fun and grief, for I found hundreds of idle men on the roads."

Fisher said that in his travels thru the west he found more idle men on the roads that go west than on the roads east.

There are many auto camps along the way with exception of the desert stretches.

"I camped out every day and had my radio connected up on the car. I always had music."

The visitor here speaks of the famous old Spanish lights on the Pacific coast:

"Out on Point Loma is a rare old sight, one of the oldest Spanish lighthouses on the Pacific coast. There is a nice trip to Tia Juana, Mex., where all the tourists go when they arrive in San Diego."

Safety-Pin Removed From Baby's Troat

Pittsburgh Baby Girl Has Safety-Pin Lodged In Throat —Will Recover

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, June 25.—Physicians at St. John's hospital removed an open safety-pin from the throat of 15-months-old Margaret Blentenger and today the infant apparently was none the worse for the experience. Mrs. Katherine Blentenger had removed the pin from the baby's clothing, and while her back was turned the child put the pin in its mouth.

Hospitals Benefit By Alcohol Seizure

(International News Service)

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., June 25.—Hospitals here received a present of 1200 gallons of grain alcohol for rubbing purposes. The alcohol was turned over by euperior court two months after it had been seized by state police from a truck driven through the city here.

Investigation following the arrest of the driver disclosed the fact that the alcohol had been distilled at Springfield, Mass., boated down the Connecticut river to Hamburg Cove, below this city, and then transhipped to the truck to be taken to Hartford. A trip of fifty miles to get the alcohol fifteen miles had been worked out, but, officials said, it was to have appeared the alcohol had been imported to the country via Long Island Sound and Connecticut river.

Brighten the breakfast with berries.

"I pile luscious red strawberries on our Shredded Wheat Biscuits and then pour cream or whole milk over them. The flavory shreds blend with the juices of the berries in such a way as to stimulate the most jaded appetite. Shredded Wheat is so healthful and wholesome."

ECONOMICAL AND EASY TO MAKE JAMS AND JELLIES

Don't let summer go by without putting up some preserves, jellies and jams. Your family will thank you and with every glass and jar you open next winter, you'll save real money. Sugar is being sold everywhere at a price that is unusually low, and bargains in fruit may be expected throughout the season.

There is a place in every meal for canned fruit of some sort. You can make economical desserts and salads with them that are wholesome and delicious. Jellies also make a taste-pleasing dessert when served with cream cheese and crackers. And when you have rice pudding, top each serving with a spoonful of jam.

Remember, too, that sweet relishes made of vegetables are delicious with meat and fish. Watch your fruit and vegetable market so you can take advantage of the bargain-day prices. Preserve with refined cane sugar. The Sugar Institute.

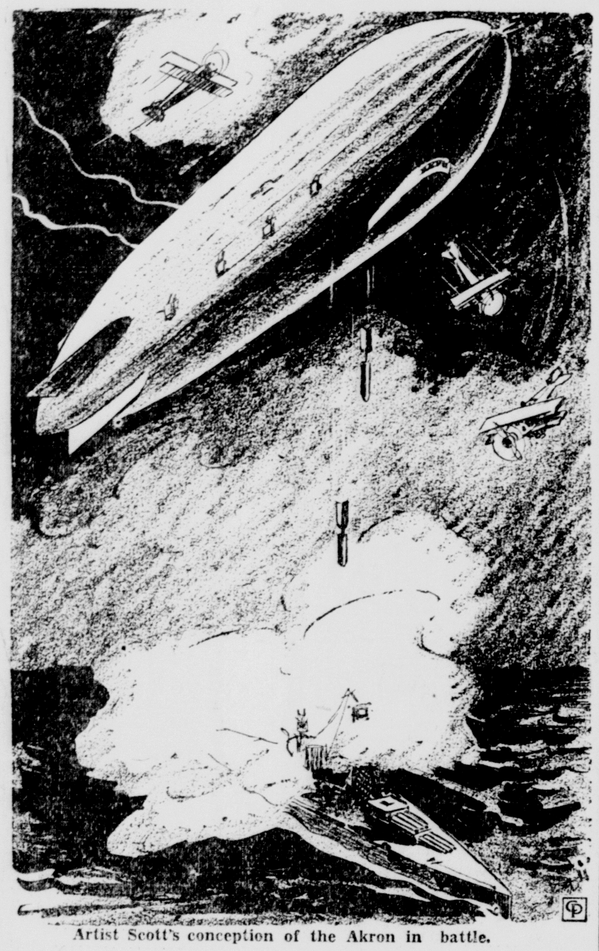
New Dirigible Pictured As Super-Fighting Ship Invincible In Warfare

No. 4.



Artist Scott's conception of the Akron in battle.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth of a series of five stories on the new navy dirigible, the U. S. S. Akron.)

By BONITA WITT
Central Press Staff Writer

AKRON, O., June 35.—A great silver airship, riding high over the ocean, swooping down out of cloud banks to rain bullets upon enemy ships and releasing speedy pursuit planes from her interior to join in attacks, undoubtedly will figure prominently in newspaper accounts of the "next war," should it materialize.

Bonita Witt

That ship will be the U. S. S. Akron, mighty fighting arm of the navy, now being constructed at Akron, under naval supervision.

David S. Ingalls, assistant secretary of the navy for aeronautics, in discussing the military value of the new ship, says: "The military future of the rigid airship is assured. The first principal purpose of the dirigible is that of scouting over the vast expanses of the oceans. Those acquainted with operations at sea will appreciate that any sort of an extended cruise over water requires great reliability and a long range. The airplane, with only one or two engines and a few hours of fuel, is obviously greatly restricted and limited in its operation and must restrain itself within reasonable distance of surface vessels to afford a base.

Super-Carrier

"The other purpose of these ships is to afford a super-carrier for airplanes. The Akron and her sister ship (yet to be constructed) are capable of carrying within their holds five or six airplanes and of launching them and taking them on board again during flight. This corrects the fundamental drawback of the airplanes within easy reach of their objectives rapidly and without fear of detection. It affords more mobility than our surface airplane carriers.

"These rigid ships are not frail creatures, the victims of any inclement weather or enemy activity. Not a single one of the 115 rigids built by the Germans came to grief because of structural failure. These ships admittedly were not nearly so strong as those of the present day. In addition, they were operated over land and within anti-aircraft range. The navy department will use these ships at sea, and, as there is no reason or justification in approaching enemy ships closely, they practically never will be within the range of anti-aircraft guns. This fact will limit the attack of enemy aircraft.

"The ships are able to rise at a rate of 2,000 feet a minute, by dropping ballast, while they are traveling forward at a speed of 80 miles an hour or more. Even the fastest pursuit plane is unable to climb at a like rate of speed, and in order to climb at all, loses a very great deal of its forward speed.

"As the crew of the rigid airship undoubtedly would see the ship from which the attacking planes would have been launched as soon as the crew saw the airship, an airplane attack may be considered negligible, for a surface vessel probably would be unable to head into the wind, prepare pilot and plane for flight and launch the craft before the Zeppelin would be out of sight. And in any event, the plane could pursue for only one-half its cruising range when it would have to return to its mother ship or be lost at sea.

"Should an airplane attack be impending, the rigid airship may first launch its five or six fighting planes as a means of defense and further may use the 16 sub-machine guns strategically located at various points of the great ship," Secretary Ingalls concludes.

At cruising speed the Akron could stay in the air more than a week, or make a non-stop round trip flight from Detroit to London.

Another advantage of the Akron over airplanes as an instrument of war is the fact that gunners on board will have heavier and longer range guns than attacking airplanes and can aim with more deadly accuracy than would be possible in an airplane, since the lighter-than-air ship affords a more stable base for the gun carriages.

Three hazards which beset surface cruisers, namely, enemy battleships, torpedoes and submarines, can be entirely disregarded by the Akron.

Protect Coastline

Naval experts have estimated that a fleet of 10 airships could patrol the entire Atlantic ocean, preventing any concentrated movement against the American coast being unobserved and unchallenged. Naval airships furthermore, will free scout cruisers permitting them a greater concentration of men, money and metal in fighting units.

The Akron will be filled with helium gas, which neither will explode nor burn. The gas is contained in many separate cells and the ship will continue to operate even though one-third of these cells is totally destroyed. The Germans actually returned to port during the World war, in more than one instance, with over one-third of their gas cells totally destroyed or emptied of gas. As helium escapes very slowly in any event, and practically not at all from the lower third of the cell, the loss of gas occasioned by hundreds of bullet holes, would be immaterial for hours. With eight separate engines, any one of which would enable the ship to cruise at at least a slow rate of speed, it is unlikely that there would be an entire loss of motive power.

All-Local Bouts At Bowl Friday

Fourteen Local Fighters Ready To Receive Tests At Castle Bowl

FANS ANXIOUS TO SEE FOUR 'ROUNDERS'

Fourteen local fighters ended training today and are awaiting the bell which will send them off in seven four round battles Friday night at the Castle bowl. Judging from the rivalry displayed by fighters and interest exhibited fans there'll be a big crowd present when the gong sounds at 9 p. m. fast time.

The fighters commenced training two weeks ago and each day's schedule called for several miles roadwork in the morning and a siege of training in the afternoon. The latter preparation consisted of boxing, rope skipping, shadow-boxing, weight pulling, wrestling and calisthenics.

During the past few months some promising boys have entered the ring here and have shown exceptional talent and as a result the boys were paired off acording to weight and ability. Every section of the city is represented and no doubt partisan support will be acorded respective favorites.

It would be no fallacy to state that the coming four round whirl between Young DiMuccio and Ray Ritchie, 124 pounders, should contain not only punch but cleverness. They have fought two fights and at the end of each encounter the fans opinion was divided. Friday night the supremacy query will be settled.

Homer Gray, the Grant street colored warior will take on a dusky middleweight, Bill Donnelli, of the South Side. Gray has chalked up two victories at the bowl but Bill claims that Homer has won his last fight here. In other words Donnelli believes that he will stop Homer when they clamber through the ropes.

Should Be Exciting

Another four round tilt that holds promise of tossing the fans into hysterics will be fought by Willie Stribling and Ollie Pollard. Stribling gave Vito Mangine a great struggle some weeks ago and Pollard, a husky socker, asked the chance to tackle Stribling. Pollard is a son of a local minister.

Kid Wright and Billy Frengel are also calendared for action. Billy is rugged, hits hard and can take it. Wright is a counter puncher who likes to mingle with the glove-hurlers and he will get his baptismal in the All-Local event. The boys have agreed to weigh 1 42 pounds at three o'clock.

Elmer Badger, a favorite in the vicinity of Wampum and who has fought Russell Powers and other boys in the tristate section will meet Nick Testa. Testa had one chance at the bowl and will be getting his second tomorrow night. Testa will weigh several pounds more than Badger but the latter has 'okayed' the weight.

First Bout at 9 P. M. D. S.

Merle Gibson's easy victory over Testa some weeks ago gave him a 'shot' at Frankie Frey. They are middleweights. Gibson owns a weaving style that may puzzle the slow-footed Frankie. Should Frey put over his right to the chin all Gibby's weaving will end but Merle claims he will be there when the last bell rings.

One of the best matches that could have been arranged will go on when Vito Mangine takes on Walter West who has given Johnny Banko two torrid battles. Vito fought Stribling here and is tough and rugged, hits often and hard and Walter will have his work cut out for him.

All of the bouts have been ranked as equal and there will be no main bout. Instead their idea is to give the local fighters a chance instead of giving the out-of-town boxers the "break." All of them are reported in good condition and the first bout will start at nine o'clock daylight saving time.

Cardinals Play Ryantown Nine

Tonight on the Ryantown field the New Castle Cardinals will open their season by meeting the New Castle Grays. The game starts at 6:30 o'clock.

The Cardinals organized only recently and are managed by Harry Shoaf who led the Central Presbyterian Church nine to the church league championship in 1929.

The following are members of the Cardinals: Ryan, Paul Hoskins, Shoaf, Uhle, Russ Neyman, Wilson, Fuzzy Neyman, Don Campbell, Bill Grommes, Paul Hudson, Houk, Jackson and Joe Lenhardt. A fast game is predicted.

The Golf Bug

Big doings today at the Municipal golf course.

This is the day of the Field Club and Municipal golf match. A red-hot battle is looked for over the big City course of 18 holes.

The general public should not stay away from the course just because a tourney is being played. The tournament starts at 4 o'clock.

Remember no high heels on the course. This law on the golf yard is strictly enforced. If wifey goes along to watch the golfers she must have low-heeled or regular golfing shoes. No Cuban-heels either. High-heels and the like ruin many a golf course.

The Muny team is practicing hard and they expect to give the Field Club boys a tough tussle for the honors tonight. The Field Club team won the match last year.

William "Bill" Fleming, former county detective will get his baptismal tonight as a tourney player. Fleming took up golf last year and liked it so well that he has been playing ever since. Recently Fleming shot a par 37 on the first nine at the "Muny". He will play for the Municipal team tonight.

An exciting battle will take place tonight if they pit William "Bill" Nunn against M. K. Gilliland. The two old timers shoot about even golf. They have had some mighty fine battles on the golf courses. Each went around the Muny the other night close to par.

The lineups for tonight are—Municipal: Kennedy, Fleming, Hughes, West, Twaddle, Prioletti, Reinheimer, Lombardi, Southworth, Molesworth, Leslie and Gilliland.

Americans And British Ready For Golf Test

Play Starts At Columbus, O., Course In Ryder Cup Competition Friday

DENSMORE SHUTE GAINS BERTH

By H. EARL WILSON
International News Service Sports Writer

SCIOTO COUNTRY CLUB, COLUMBUS, O., June 25.—Captains Walter Hagen of the American Ryder Cup team, and Charles Whitcombe of the visiting Britons, today began marshalling their respective forces for a two day golfing battle over the difficult Scioto course here.

The conflict is expected to bring out some of the finest skill and sportsmanship known to golfdom and to determine which nation can properly boast superiority in the professional field.

Ryder Cup competition will begin Friday morning over the slightly rolling slopes and dales of picturesque Scioto, when four foursomes tee off to vie with woods and irons for four points to be awarded in the day's play.

Praises Shute

Eight two-somes will journey over the same par-72 route during Friday, contesting eight more points, the distribution of which will be a decisive factor in the biennial classic.

Capt. Whitcombe, leader of the Britishers, in an interview with International News Service, expressed admiration for 27-year-old Densmore Shute, Ohio's home-bred pro, who skimmed over the Scioto course yesterday in even par 72 to defeat Frank Walsh of Chicago and Henry Cuici of Bridgeport, Conn., in the the play-off of a three-way tie for tenth place on the American Ryder team.

Ball Yard Banter

The American league hasn't had a fellow like Ben Chapman of the Yankees around since Ty Cobb and George Sisler were in their prime. And that's getting to be quite some time. Chapnie, you should know, is becoming the best base thief in the big leagues.

Chapman has really restored this lost art to the Yankee stadium this season—and the fans are making a hero of him, as result.

The speed with which Chapman is collecting stolen bases suggests that the young Yankee may steal 50 bags before the season ends. It has been a number of years since that figure has been attained by any big league ball player.

Ty Cobb was, of course, the greatest base stealer of modern baseball. He led the big leagues for six years in this specialty.

Chapman is a natural base stealer. He has a world of speed, breaks fast, has a long step and is a good slider, hitting the bag when he dives for it. He also seems to have that sixth sense which makes him start in the right instant.

* * *

Chappie has stolen second and then third in the same inning, several times this year. He has also stolen as high as three bases in one game.

Whether or not Chappie tops 50 this year, he seems certain to win the big league thefting "title" for the American league. If he does it will be the first time since 1920 that the American league has had undisputed claim to that championship. In 1922 George Sisler was tied by Carey with 51 each and in 1926 Johnny Mostil tied with Kiki Cuyler with 35. In 1921, 1923, 1924, 1925, 1927, 1928, 1929 and 1930 a National league man has proven the fastest man on the paths.

A merchant can tell the rich. They are the ones who buy the best and keep him waiting a year for his money.

Here And There In Sports' Land

GEORGE WATKINS, Cardinals right fielder, drove out three home runs in the Cardinals twin bill with the Phils yesterday. One of the clouts put Frisch across the home plate. In the first game he got a hit.

ALL Pennsylvania college golfers were eliminated in the first or second rounds of the individual match play for the intercollegiate championship at Chicago.

HAROLD LEE, British hard court champion, beat George Lott, Philadelphia, in the third round of the men's singles at Wimbledon yesterday, 5-1, 7-5, 7-5, 7-5.

FRANK SHIELDS, of New York, beat Aberhard Nourney, Germany, 6-1, 6-1, 6-2 and John Van Ryn scored over Franz Matajka, Austria, 6-3, 3-6, 6-1, 6-4 in the other singles in which the Americans competed.

* * *

EVERYTHING is in readiness for the seven glove battles Friday night at the bowl and all the boxers are raring to go. It is the first time that the schedule has contained none but local pugilistic material.

* * *

GENE TUNNEY believes Young Stribling will whip Max Schmeling at Cleveland on the night of July 3 when they battle 15 rounds for the world's heavyweight championship. Gene will be at the ringside.

* * *

LAVERNE FATOR rode his thousandth winner when he piloted Blind Bow Boy to victory in the third race at Aqueduct, N. Y. He has been riding since 1912. He has ridden 751 second horses and 640 third horses.

* * *

JOEY GOODMAN, Cleveland, passed through New Castle last night enroute to Pittsburgh. He is calendared to box Ray Kiser tonight at Millvale. Kiser is a willing, aggressive lightweight.

Cardinals Face Hustling Robins

St. Louis Cardinals Have Lot Of Work Cut Out For Next Few Days

MEET GIANTS IN GAMES NEXT WEEK

By LES CONKLIN
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, June 25.—The St. Louis Cardinals, leading the National League parade by 3 1-2 games this morning, will be called upon to face the toughest kind of opposition during the next week against Brooklyn and New York, two of the fastest-traveling clubs in the circuit. After playing a five-game series with the Robins, starting this afternoon, the champions will invade the Polo Grounds next week to tackle the second-place Giants.

The Robins moved into the first division for the first time this year by making the Pirates walk the plank twice yesterday, 6 to 4 and 5 to 3.

Cards Win Two.

The Cardinals subdued the Phillies twice by the same score, 4 to 2. George Watkins poled three home runs in the second game.

It was quite a day for the home run hitters, sixteen circuit clouts being the day's total, while the National League club owners in solemn conclave here declared that the "dead" ball was cutting down home runs and batting averages.

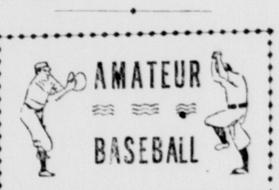
To further mock the moguls, the Cubs and Giants scored 24 runs in the second game of their doubleheader, Chicago grabbing the verdict, 14 to 10, by scoring six runs in the ninth. The ball was deader than a door nail in the first game, however, in which Carl Hubbell of the Giants won a 2 to 0 duel from Bob Smith.

With Silas Johnson on the mound, Cincinnati trimmed Boston for the third time in a row, 8 to 5. With Zachary pitching, the Braves salvaged the second game, 11 to 6. Wallace Hebert southpawed the Athletics into submission for the second time this season, 6 to 5, with the aid of two homers by Goose Goslin Washington muffed a chance to gain ground on the leaders by succumbing to Detroit, 7 to 5.

Berry Hits Hard.

Babe Ruth walloped his 15th homer of the season, putting him only one behind Lou Gehrig in the American League home run derby, as the Yanks turned in their third straight win over Chicago, 10 to 3.

Wiley Moore, former world series hero, and Berry, his battery mate, led the Boston Red Sox to a 7 to 3 win over Cleveland. Moore yielded only six hits while Berry drove in five runs.



Brown Eagles would like to book games with all fast teams in the city or county. Any teams interested are asked to call 6023 and ask for Anderson.

On Wednesday on the Coaltown field the Coaltown A. C. walloped the General team by a 13-2 score. Logue with four hits featured for the winners while Phillips was the best for the losers.

The score by innings:
Coaltown ..... 204 205 0—13
Generals ..... 000 000 2— 2

Batteries—Coaltown, Book and Logue; Generals, Rowbottom and Phillips.

On Wednesday afternoon on the Lawrence ground the Atlantic nine lost by a 16-7 score to the Pirates. The game was fast throughout.

Score by innings:
Atlantic ..... 000 200 221— 7
Pirates ..... 514 013 11x—16

The batteries: Atlantic nine, Ross and Maggie; Pirates, Bartberger and Zena.

BIBLE CLASS MEN TO STAGE TOURNEY

A golf tournament between six or more foursomes, made of members of the Men's Bible class of the First M. E. church, will be played at the Castle Hills link tonight at 6 o'clock. The class is sponsoring the match.

Spying On Sports

GEAUGA LAKE, O., June 25.—The battle of Lake Erie, in which Herr Moxie Schmeling and Marse Willie Stribling will contest for the world's heavyweight championship may be a serious matter, a profound and epic event to Mr. John Q. Public, but it isn't regarded as wholly so by Georgia. At least, not that part of Geogia which now inhabits this northern Ohio amusement center.

The Stribling family knows how to laugh. And they've done a lot of it since Pa and Ma and Willie pitched camp here and prepared for battle with the stern-faced German, who holds the title the Striblings want.

Schmeling's camp, at Conneaut Lake, though its harbors the czar of all the heavyweights, is not the amusing show one finds here. And it's probably because Herr Max and retinue do not know just how to laugh. The Striblings do.

That old saw about the boy and the country might be changed to read that you might take a family out of the show business, but you can't take showmanship out of a family. The Striblings, here in Geauga, are giving a good show.

The peering public gathers every other night around the lighted ringside and when the crowd leaves you never hear anyone griping because they failed to see a good show. They were entertained, every minute of the workout.

Of course, the presence of Ma Stribling, who handles the bell and holds that watch on the workouts, drawns attention of the crowd. And so does Pa, inside the ring, directing the sparring matches and bag punching.

But the sidelights make the show. There's Hughey Henry, Strib's clown announcer, who keeps the crowd guffawing with his drolleries. There's Lake Russell, Strib's trainer, and Jay Thomas, Strib's publicity man, who wise-crack on occasion. There's the collection of sparring partners, who join in the fun. And there's Strib himself, who, on a night we viewed him, took a swing—as a joke—at William F. Carey, Madison Square Garden president.

But don't get an idea that the Stribs believe all play and no work will make Willie champion of the world.

Not at all.

Stribling's actual training is as much in earnest as ever was that of any heavyweight title contender. He looks fine and fit and he's been working out against some good sparring partners lately.

Strib has looked awfully good some nights and not so good others. This is because he is really in the pink and his parent-managers are trying to keep him from going stale.

The way Willie looks now, Max may have his hands full the night of July 3 in Cleveland—but meanwhile, there's no reason why the challenger and his crowd shouldn't be having their laughs. They say laughing is healthy. Well, Willie fairly reeks with health.

ELDER GIRLS WIN

The Elder girls mushball team defeated the Elder boys team 14 to 12 in a mushball game at Elders field. The girls hit the ball hard, getting 17 hits off Edmiston. Constance Montanary pitched for the girls. Schankert and J. Butler had homers.

Heavy Buying Wave Strikes Stock Market

By W. S. COUSINS
International News Service Financial Editor

NEW YORK, June 25.—The stock market boiled over this morning under the impact of a heavy buying wave, which swept in from all quarters at the opening. With the speed ticker lagging seven minutes, a total of 900,000 shares passed through the market in the first half hour and trading set a pace calculated to turn over 2,000,000 shares by noon.

Though spectacular jumps in prices were not as frequent as in some of the recent sessions, the favorites pushed ahead a point or two to the best prices on the move, with an occasional 5-point jump in the Specialties which have not participated in the rise of the last few days.

United States Steel carried its new advance to 101⅝, up 1⅜ from yesterday's close. American Can gained a point at 111¼; American Tobacco B was up about a point; Westinghouse up fractionally; Chrysler Motor up 1; Electric Autolite up 2; DuPont up 2; American and Foreign Power up 1½ at 35⅜; Consolidated Gas up 1½. J. I. Case led the Specialties, with a rise of more than 6 points at 86½. Auburn Auto Jumped 10 points.

Diamonds Taken In Jewel Theft This Afternoon

Pittsburgh Salesman Loses Valuable Jewels And Watches, Stolen From Car

TOTAL VALUE IS NOT ESTIMATED

Diamonds, watches and jewelry, the exact value of which is not known at the present time, but which will total thousands of dollars, were stolen from the car of a jewelry salesman, Carl Levine of 308 Clark building, Pittsburgh, in front of Woolworth's store on East Washington street, early this afternoon.

Levine reported to police that he had left his car locked, and the windows pulled tight to the top, in front of the store while he was visiting a customer. When he returned, a short time later, the one window was down, and two suitcases, one of which contained watches and the other diamonds and jewels, were missing.

Pinchot Vetoes More Bills Of Last Session

Official Disapproval Is Recorded On 21 Pieces Of Legislation

ONLY ONE MEASURE IS APPROVED TODAY

Governor Devoting All His Time To Ridding Desk Of Legislative Nills

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG June 25—Still-closeted at the executive mansion where he is devoting all his attention to legislation yet before him, Gov. Gifford Pinchot today announced the veto of 21 bills passed at the last session of the legislature.

Approval of but one measure, an apropriation of $346,000 for the Glen Mills Reform School, was announced. An item of $25,000 for construction of an automobile repair shop at the school was stricken from the bill because of insufficient finances available.

Because such expenses are now assumed by the federal govenment and the counties the governor refused to approve a $200,000 fund to be used for the burial expenses of honorary discharged war veterans. Under existing legislation the family of a veteran now may obtain $175 to pay funeral expenses.

A $100,000 item for the department of public instruction, to purchase and circulate moving picture films and slides was disapproved as was a $5,000 fund for a proposed commission to make a study of useless and obsolete laws of the statute books. Such a study, the governor said, can be made equally well by the legislative reference bureau.

Vetoes Road Laws

The governor vetoed a series of seven bills proposing various minor changes in existing highway laws and methods of county and township aid. In all his veto messages the executive reiterated his intention of approving nothing which will conflict with the general highway program he has sponsored.

Senator George Weingartner's bill to create the office of controller and abolish that of auditor in sixth class counties was included in the vetoes. The governor pointed out that counties of the sixth class may now have a county controller instead of auditors by accepting the proceedings prescribed by the county code. An amendment to the code contained in the ominibus amendment which the governor already has approved permits the retention of the controller by counties which have receded to the sixth class by reason of loss of population.

An amendment to the fictitious names act which would have increased the fines for failure to register with the secretary of the commonwealth and made such cases possible of dispostion in a magistrate's court rather than by a jury trial was also disapproved. It was sponsored by Senator Max• Aron, Philadelphia.

Refuses Pay Increase

Although sponsored by Rep. Charles Staudenmeier, Schuylkill, the Pinchot floor leader in the house the governor withheld his approval on a proposal to increase by $600 annually the salaries paid the custodians of the halls of the senate and house.

A bill which would have permitted cities of the third class to provide by ordinance for the payment of public work already accepted or used even though no contract for it had been made was vetoed. The governor said approval of the bill would "legalize a practice in direct contravention of law and would establish a bad precedent." The bill was sponsored by Rep. Daniel Strickler, Lancaster.

The executive also withheld approval on a bill which would have prevented exercise of the right of eminent domain for obtaining of land occupied by historic landmarks or which was patented by the commonwealth to an officer in the Continental army and has remained in ownership of his direct descendants.

In his veto message the governor turned back to the history of the commonwealth following the Revolution. At that time the commonwealth threw open to settlers a tract of 1,125 square miles, lying north of the Ohio and west of the Allegheny The land was sold at auction and the depreciation certificates with which Revolutionary soldiers had been paid were accepted in lieu of specie. The tract comprised the greater part of the present counties of Allegheny, Armstrong, Butler, Beaver and Lawrence.

Later the commonwealth authorized the donation of 569,000 acres to soldiers and officers of the Revolution. The land then opened was situated partly in Butler, Armstrong, Venango, Warren and Erie counties and comprised the whole of Mercer and Crawford counties.

Coyne Bill on List

The governor apparently felt that for the commonwealth to try and establish the lineal succession of such tracts when desiring to exercise the right of eminent domain would entail endless confusion and litigation. Senator Frank Baldwin, Potter, introduced the bill.

Senator Patrick J. Coyne's bill which would have permitted the original indebtedness of territory annexed to municipalities to be validated by councils or commissioners, provided it did not exceed two per cent of the assessed valuation of the city, was also vetoed.

Such indebtedness, the governor said, can be validated only by the electors under the constitution. Reasons given for other vetoes were that the bills conflicted with legislation already approved or were useless.

Report Mme. Lupescu Attempted Suicide In Bucharest Residence

Report Says "Campaign Of Terror" Caused King's Paramour To Attempt Life

Considerable Mystery Surrounds Incident—Took "Overdose Of Veronal"

By ERIC G. BOY
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, June 25.—A "campaign of terror" against Mme. Magda Lupescu, titian-haired paramour of King Carol II. of Roumania, culminating in an alleged suicide attempt, was reported today in dispatches reaching here from Bucharest.

Considerable mystery surrounded the incident. A message to the Berlin newspaper Lokal-Anzeiger reported a definite attempt at suicide, while other dispatches merely stated the beautiful Roumanian divorcee who lived with Carol for five years in exile, had taken an "overdose" of veronal.

Rumors Denied

Immediately preceding the incident, however, some of Mme. Lupescu's many enemies in Bucharest were said to have launched upon a campaign of terrorization with the avowed object of enforcing her speedy departure from Bucharest. Whether their attempt was successful was problematical.

Some reports said the alleged suicide attempt took place ten days ago and that Mme. Lupescu left soon after her recovery for Paris. Others stated she was still in Bucharest, residing in a Villa furnished by King Carol, while semi-official sources persisted in their declaration Mme. Lupescu had not been in Roumania since Carol's seizure of the throne.

The exact extent of his injuries have not been determined. He was hurt when the cars of John A. Bame of 822 Morton street and Francis Johnson of 840 Almira avenue, came together at the street intersection with great force.

Many minor automobile accidents were reported to the police over Wednesday.

The most serious occurred on Grant street, about 200 feet from the Grant street bridge, when a truck being driven by Albert Brown of Grant street, collided with two automobiles.

P. J. Beigley of 107 South Forres' street, Youngstown, reported that his car had been damaged and his wife slightly injured. Dane P. Gibson of Euclid avenue reported to police that his car had also been struck by the truck, damaging his car some. Brown also made a report of the accident and admitted running into the cars.

Frank Morrison of R. F. D. No. 2, reported he was going south on Mercer street, when a car bearing Pennsylvania license No. 6303K going west on South street, failed to stop for the traffic sign and crashed into his car, damaging the front wheel and fender.

R. G. Johnson of Brockton, Mass., reported to police that he was backing his car in front of McGoun's shoe store, when he backed into a fire plug which extends out along the curb too far, damaging his right rear fender.

REDEDICATE SAFETY TROPHY AT LEHIGH

plant as a memorial to the living." He said also that the worker in the industries is safer at work than on the highways or in the home.

A. J. R. Curtis, secretary of the department of safety council of the Portland Cement association, said: "We are here to show respect for the record you have made in 1930. It is the second time the trophy has been won by this plant. Therefore you can have twice as much respect for yourselves."

He said that he hoped the plant would again win in 1931. "It is not without the range of possibility," said Curtis, who explained that the company has a policy of accident prevention and had shown a hearty cooperation of the leadership to prevent accidents.

Trophy Unveiled.

He next presented the trophy which was unveiled by Miss Emma Lou Kleckner, niece of Superintendent W. H. Kleckner, and Miss Blanche Davy, daughter of Wes Davy. As the strings were pulled and the covering was drawn from the cut stone memorial to the living the school band broke out in a stirring number.

The trophy in behalf of the plant and employes was formally accepted by Superintendent W. H. Kleckner who said: "We thank you very much." He was followed by Senator George T. Weingartner, who made the principal address, and he opened his speceh by describing how safety is being taught.

The senator called attention to the fact that Governor Gifford Pinchot had signed a bill which would make teaching of safety a part of the public school curriculum. He also said that he had voted for the measure and believed it would prove very beneficial.

Weingartner said he knew personally practically all of the employes of the plant and those people who had gathered to help celebrate the event. He said that he was interested in the manufacture of cement only as one of the public concerned in a great industry.

The senator remarked that three factors entered into a safety first movement and he classified them as the manufacturer with his machinery, millions and investment; the employes coming into direct contact with an employer, the employe furnishing his labor and the employer to make labor safe.

He said the third factor is the great mass of people outside which is interested "in this industry because it is part of the industrial system of the world." Weingartner next told of the safety achievements of the plant and described how sorrow in the home had been eliminated by the men's efforts.

He compared former conditions to those of today. He said legislation had helped but it was not until the industries realized the importance of educating employes to prevent accidents and the employes had given their support to the movement that conditions of today had been achieved.

Senator Weingartner said the public is interested in seeing uninterrupted operation and heads of families not maimed but permitted to live out their span of life. "I am proud to have voted to make safety training a part of the school study." He then congratulated the plant on winning the award again.

Present Bouquet.

The chamber of commerce presented a beautiful bouquet to the men who made the rededication possible. Louis Genkinger, councilman who is also president of the local chamber of commerce, was present as was Mayor William Gillespie and Councilman Treser.

After the presentation, Joseph S. Young, assistant to the president, spoke.

He said he was pleased to be present at the auspicious event and said it was very gratifying to see such a large gathering. He remarked that the "no lost time" accident movement must have the support of employes' families, judging from the large number of women and children present.

He said the Lehigh Portland Cement Company is justly proud and the men who made it possible had a right to be equally as proud. He remarked the credit belonged to the men and the leaders who had made the second award and rededication possible.

Young detailed the campaign for safety, the first of which started in 1914, and gave a chronology of cement workers, declaring that the American cement worker was the best in the world. He produced more in the same time than the Belgium cement worker, he said. He said wages here also were better.

He ascribed this to the enthusiasm displayed by the American cement worker, something lacking on the other side. He said the basic factor in the work is the safety committee, which he termed the very backbone of the worker. He said the trophy is a symbol of loyalty to one another.

Young dealt briefly with depression and told how President Hoover had likened conditions of today to those through which the Revolutionary soldiers went at Valley Forge, and how the President had called upon the citizens to be loyal and stand steadfast.

He said tonnage during the past few years had dropped, but that the company had decided not to pay a dividend to common stockholders but chose instead to keep the mills operating and the local plant is now going 100 per cent. He said the men had the support of the company and the company desired the men's support.

Young declared that if the sales continued "we will go on operating through this year." He made a plea for reduction in the cost of operating to help make this possible. Young, not old in years but well versed in cement manufacture, made a fine impression in his first visit here.

Following his address several numbers were rendered by the Oak street girls' chorus and several numbers by the band. Later "America" was sung by the assemblage and free soft drinks, ice cream and sweets were given to the hundreds who attended the rededication and unveiling.

Stock Prices Continue Rise

New Peak Prices Reached In Most Exciting Turnover Of Present Week

By W. S. COUSINS
International News Service Financial Editor

NEW YORK, June 25.—Peak prices of the present bull movement were reached in the fastest and most exciting turnover of the week on the big board today. With approximately 2,300,000 shares passing through the market in the forenoon, the new speed tickers were unequal to the task and fell behind seven minutes. In the early afternoon the pace slackened and the excitement subsided, but prices were well maintained.

Though Auburn Auto performed as usual with a 22-point jump to 199½ and J. I. Case moved up about seven points, spectacular gains in the industrial favorites were not as numerous as in the last few days. The Dow Jones industrial averages showed an advance of 3½ points for the industrials, but the rails and utilities were up about half a point on the average. United States Steel at 102 was up two points from Wednesday's close; Westinghouse up 2¼ at 70; General Electric up one at 45⅝; American Tel and Tel up two; Johns Manville up two; St. Joseph Lead up one; Standard Gas up 1½; Consolidated Gas up 1⅞.

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle

It seems as though perhaps there has been erratic steering on that statement concerning the first fire house being on Butler avenue. Charley Patterson called last night and says that the old house now being destroyed wasn't the first fire station and that he has the real information in some old books.

The Lehigh folks re-dedicated their safety trophy Friday afternoon which is not news to you if you've read the paper tonight. The thing that is interesting though is that accidents are becoming bad form in industry. There was a time when accidents were all a part of the day's work. A railroader who didn't have a couple of fingers chewed up by a coupling knuckle was considered a sissy, and every steel worker had scars to prove his trade. Now an accident in industry is rare enough to excite comment.

Accidents now are the same as drunks on the streets. A few years ago you passed so many of them you never thought of mentioning it. Now if you pass a drunk on the street the fact stands out something like a wart on the end of a movie star's nose.

Heard in a barber shop. "What'll you have on your hair today?" And the answer was "just a dash of Pymatuning."

Perhaps you didn't know that the Shenango River was one time known as the Pymatuning River. Just where the name Pymatuning originates hasn't been explained yet, but it probably belonged to a tribe of Indians.

A short time now until the shovels are into the swamp, and the dam itself begins to take shape. It won't be as large a project as the Boulder Dam, or the Roosevelt Dam, but in this part of the world it will mean about as much as those dams do to the southwest.

Philosophers don't often drop into the office but when they do, they are always welcome. One of them dropped in yesterday for a visit, and discoursed for a time upon the present day tendency of colleges to abandon the cultural studies, and to turn out factory made degrees rather than finished cultural products.

Said the philosopher, as he mused over the days, when he sang in quartets along the Yale fence, "they're dropping Latin and Greek now, and in some cases higher mathematics. They're turning out Bachelors of Arts and Bachelors of Science, but it seems to me they're denying the students of some of the things that go to make up a well balanced life."

"After all, the ability to enjoy the beautiful things in life is a part of living just as training for the professions is. And it is that ability to enjoy the finer things, art, architecture, music and the sciences, that go to make up a life."

Another one for Stan Treser. The intersection of Cascade street and Butler avenue has a deep ridge which spells disaster for automobile springs. A dimes worth of crushed stone, and a couple of shovels full of earth and the intersection would be all right. As it is, some good brother is going to shred his springs some afternoon, and you can imagine his embarrassment.

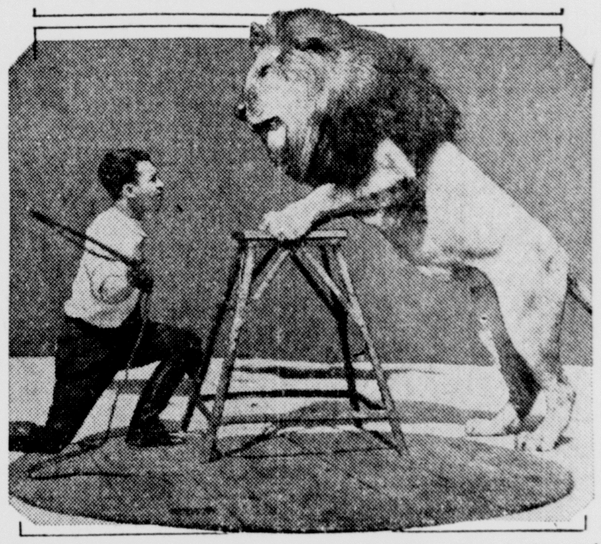
Many Wild Animals With Coming Circus



Thirty-four African lions, Bengal and Siberian tigers, both male and femals, will compose the group that will be subjugated by Clyde Beatty, when the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus comes to New Castle for afternoon and night performances on Tuesday July 7. This is positively the largest display of lions and tigers ever offered by any circus.

Beatty, known as America's premier subjugator, is just barely over his majority. In 1922 he left his home in Chillicothe, Ohio, with a small circus and during the interval has reached the top pinnacle in his profession. Beatty has his own ideas about handling jungle brutes and has never had a serious accident, although several times he has been attacked by his charges.

Aage Christiansen, noted European subjugator, will also have a large arenic offering, a mixed group of leopards, pumas, hyenas and bears. Other outstanding features will be "The Great Wilno" who is actually shot from a huge cannon, and the Famous Hanneford Family with Poodles, premier riding clown. In addition one of the most beautiful spectacles ever presented, "The Golden Orient," will open the performances.

For in Pennsylvania, according to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, there was one automobile for every 5.49 persons at the beginning of this year. In the country as a whole, on the other hand, there was one motor vehicle for every 4.63 persons, with Pennsylvania ranking thirty-sixth of the forty-eight states in the decimal part of a car per resident.

California led the country in this respect with one motor car for every 2.78 persons.
